

Education Tax—!

Needs Met With Levy

"Next in importance to freedom and justice is popular education, without which neither freedom nor justice can be permanently maintained."

The impressive building rambles along part of a 20-acre tract at 19th and Ingram. Entering the advanced stages of completion, it includes the necessary facilities a modern junior high school requires to do its job.

As in many other major building projects, some delays in construction have been experienced but they don't appear to present any serious problems. Thanks to building bonds passed by School District 200 voters on March 24, 1970, the area will soon have what has been noticeably lacking for so long — a junior high school.

There's just one hangup — the present school tax levy, the lowest in the state for cities of more than 5,000 persons, isn't enough to support operation and maintenance of the new junior high.

That's where Tuesday's election comes in. A 65-cent tax levy increase is necessary to make the new school fully functional, as well as reduce class size at Smith-Cotton High School and provide kindergartens in the elementary schools. Without the levy increase some of the facilities of the $1.9 million junior high will remain dormant, classes will remain overcrowded and public kindergarten will remain only a concept in Sedalia.

Other problems present themselves should the levy vote be a negative one, as it was in the April 4 city election.

The local school system is not only in danger of losing a chance at regaining a prestigious AAA rating from the State Department of Education, but the system's accreditation status with the North Central Association is also in jeopardy now. Plans to provide vocational-technical classes at Smith-Cotton and expand the services of a cooperative learning disability program with the Children's Therapy Center also depend on approval of the levy hike, according to Dr. T. J. Norris, superintendent of schools, and Roger Garlich, director of the Therapy Center.

Accreditation Ratings Needed

The school system lost its AAA rating with the state two years ago because of overcrowded classes and a lack of vo-tech courses and kindergartens. The NCA has told the school system that to remain a member in good standing "sufficient per-pupil expenditures must be provided annually to insure that the Association's standards are met or exceeded and that they shall compare favorably with other accredited schools in the region and state. In deciding whether a reasonable financial effort is being made, consideration shall be given to such factors as per-capita income and assessed valuation, along with the tax rate and per-pupil expenditure for instructional purposes."

Dr. Norris said that accreditation would be lost with the NCA at the start of the 1973-74 school year, unless the public's financial support of the school system is beefed up.

AAA guidelines, advancing with statewide educational procedures as determined by the State Department of Education, now insist that class sizes be held to 30 students and that vo-tech and kindergarten be active educational programs.

Vo-Tech Is Vital

Local educators see the lack of vocational-technical courses as a serious problem, especially considering that only half of Smith-Cotton's graduates attend college.

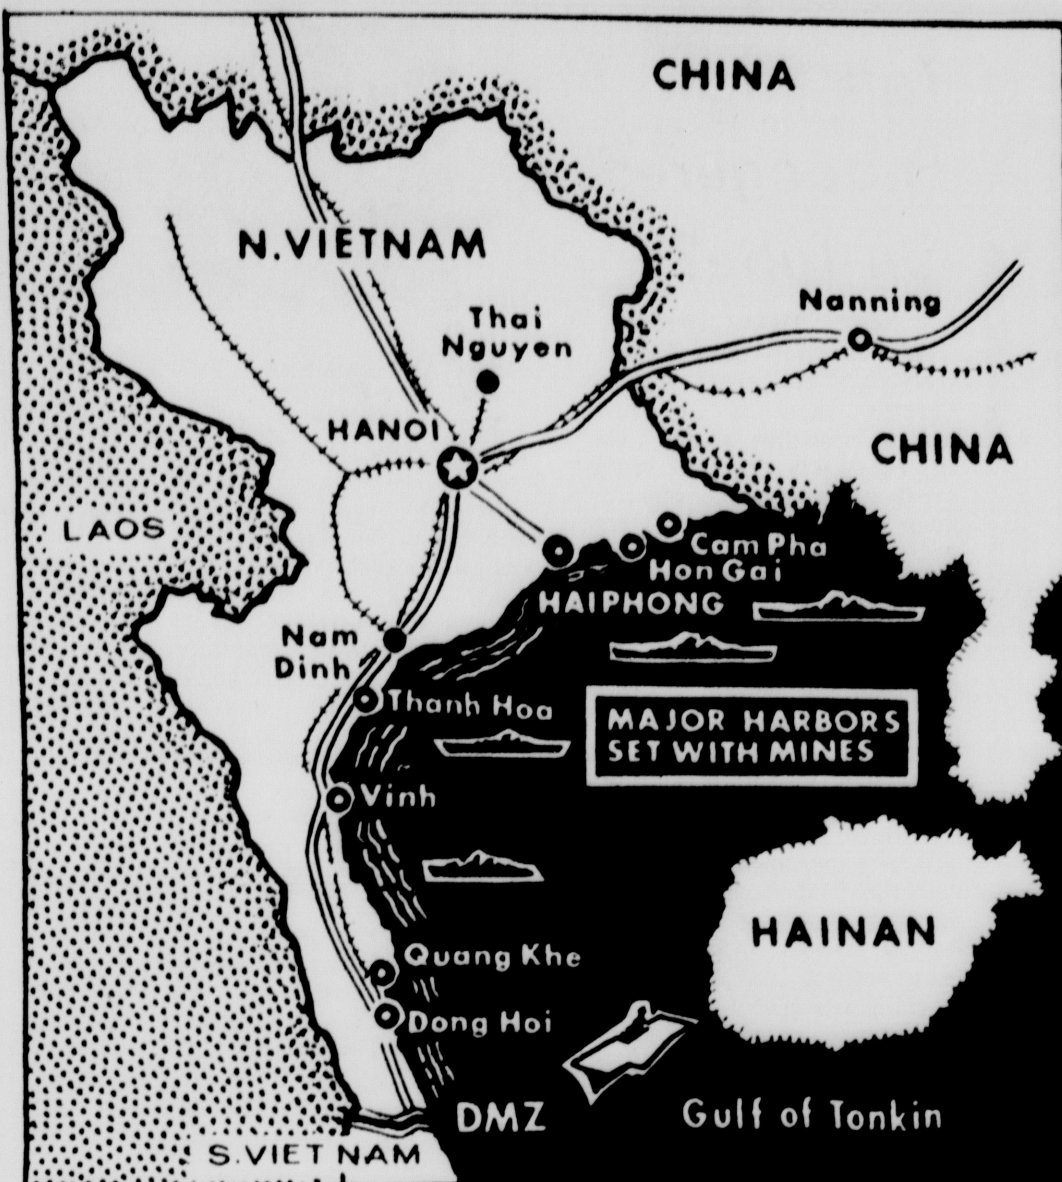

Norris explained recently that the school system has made arrangements with Warrensburg and Marshall schools to bus interested S-C students to vo-tech classes in those cities. Norris said the school system could pay the tuition and busing expenses for such a venture, but only with an increased levy. He revealed a list of 14 Smith-Cotton students who have enrolled in auto-body and welding courses for next fall at Warrensburg.

"It's a matter of how long we want to put up with these kind of conditions as citizens of Sedalia."

Many vo-tech courses require special and larger classroom facilities, such as the Warrensburg auto-body class, Norris said. But he explained that S-C could hold vo-tech classes of a more conventional nature with little alteration of present facilities. He mentioned an electrical class and a course in small engine repair as two possibilities. But he emphasized

Nixon In Session To Insure Journey

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon met today with two ranking Soviet officials—a surprise session that might indicate his North Vietnamese moves will not wreck the May 22 Moscow summit.

The White House described the meeting between Nikolai Patolichev, the Soviet minister of Foreign Trade, and Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, with Nixon and three of his top aides as a "courtesy call."

But, coming as it did against the backdrop of a Soviet statement on Nixon's latest Vietnam measures, it could be a hopeful sign for the long-arranged summit.

Press secretary Ronald Ziegler, who described the session as a courtesy call, said Patolichev was in Washington for trade talks with Secretary of Commerce Peter G. Peterson.

Peterson was in Nixon's office for the meeting, as was presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and economic adviser Peter Flanagan.

Nixon and the trade minister talked through a translator.

Precisely what business they were discussing was not disclosed. But the timing of the meeting seemed significant.

The session came soon after the Soviet Union's first top-level reaction to Nixon's announcement Monday night that he had ordered the mining of entrances to all North Vietnamese harbors to choke off war supplies.

The mines were activated at 7 a.m. EDT, today and a short time later the Kremlin declared Nixon's actions would "complicate further the situation in Southeast Asia and are fraught with serious consequences for international peace and security."

The 890-word Soviet statement made no mention of the summit conference between Nixon and Kremlin leaders.

Opposition Mounting

Seeking Ease on Ports

WASHINGTON (AP) — While congressional opposition mounted to President Nixon's decision to mine North Vietnamese harbors, the Soviet government called today for an end to the U.S. move to block the ports.

A Soviet statement in Moscow, distributed by Tass, the official news agency, said:

"The Soviet government resolutely insists that the United States' steps to block the coast and disrupt ground communications of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam be cancelled without delay, that acts of U.S. aggression against the DRV be ended, that the right to freedom of international navigation and trade be respected."

There was no suggestion in the statement of any postponement or cancellation of the planned summit conference of Nixon with Soviet leaders in Moscow beginning May 22.

Nixon met meanwhile with two ranking Soviet officials—a surprise session seen as a sign his North Vietnamese moves will not wreck the summit.

The White House described the meeting between Soviet Minister of Foreign Trade Nikolai Patolichev, and Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, with Nixon and three of his top aides as a "courtesy call."

In Saigon, the U.S. 7th Fleet announced that several freighters, including at least one under a Soviet flag, left Haiphong harbor before the deadline set by Nixon for safe passage through the mined entrance.

House Foreign Affairs Committee Democrats, in an unprecedented move, registered formal opposition to administration policy.

But the White House, releasing what it said was a sampling of telegrams, said sentiment ran five-to-one in favor of Nixon's action announced Monday night.

Scores of demonstrations also broke out across the nation in protest of the administration policy, with hundreds arrested and vandalism a common occurrence. Even the House of Representatives felt the sting of protest as nearly 300 high school students chanted antiwar slogans from the galleries, forcing Speaker Carl Albert to close the galleries to visitors for nearly three hours.

By a 10 to 4 vote, the Foreign Affairs Committee Democrats approved legislation to end all U.S. military activity in Indochina by Oct. 1 if Hanoi agrees to release all American prisoners of war and implement a ceasefire.

Among critics of Nixon's bold maneuver were Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, long considered hawkish on the war, and six Democratic governors.

Speaking to reporters in Chicago, Daley said, "I realize the tremendous decision the President had to make, but I don't think he had the right to do it."

Treasury Secretary John Connally, the only Democrat in Nixon's cabinet, criticized Senate Democrats Wednesday for their action condemning Nixon and said he may not vote Democratic in the presidential race.

Several Vessels Leave Haiphong

SAIGON (AP) — Several freighters, including at least one flying the Soviet flag, pulled out of Haiphong harbor before the deadline set by President Nixon for safe passage through the mined entrance, the U.S. 7th Fleet announced today.

The mines dropped by U.S. planes Tuesday across the entrance to Haiphong and six other North Vietnamese ports armed themselves at 7 p.m. Saigon time—7 a.m. EDT. They now can be expected to explode when ships pass over or near them.

Intense U.S. air and naval bombardment continued against military targets in North Vietnam for the third successive day. The 7th Fleet said the most powerful cruiser-destroyer force assembled in the western Pacific since World War II was ranging up and down the coast hitting within four miles of Haiphong.

Informants said U.S. fighter-bombers flew 300 strikes against the Hanoi-Haiphong military complex and other areas of North Vietnam Wednesday, and pilots reported shooting down 10 MIG interceptors, the biggest one-day bag of the war.

Demonstrations Spread

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The United Nations, the Capitol in Washington, military posts, city streets and dozens of college campuses were scenes of protest today as demonstrations against President Nixon's new Vietnam policy moved through a third day.

More than 500 arrests were made today in different sections of the country, putting the total number of persons seized since the President's nationwide address Monday night to well over 1,000.

College students and teachers chained themselves to seats in the visitor's gallery of the United Nations Security Council today and the world organization appealed for reinforcement from the New York City police.

The Security Council building was closed to the public while the demonstrators remained quietly in the gallery seats.

The demonstrators, identified by U.N. officials as faculty and students of Brooklyn Community College and Columbia University, demanded to see

U.S. Ambassador George Bush, president of the council this month.

A crowd estimated by police at 1,500 gathered on the steps of the U.S. Capitol in Washington to hear speeches against the administration's policies by about 16 members of Congress.

More than 300 demonstrators, including the president of Amherst College and his wife and the wife of the president of Smith College, were arrested for blocking traffic at Westover Air Force Base in Chicopee, Mass.

Chicago police said they arrested 16 people who blocked morning rush-hour traffic for the second day on South Lake Shore Drive. In Marshall, Minn., police arrested 119 people from Southwest State College for blocking traffic at the intersection of three state highways.

In Minneapolis, 200 National Guardsmen took up protective positions at the University of Minnesota army and at an Air Force recruiting station a short distance from the campus. The soldiers carried only riot sticks, a spokesman said.

The guardsmen were ordered onto the campus after two days of clashes between police and protesters.

Arrests ran into the hundreds Wednesday as police used nightsticks, tear gas and horses to break up protests. Both demonstrators and police were injured.

The disorders were the most serious since the May 1970 protests over the U.S. invasion of Cambodia, when colleges and universities throughout the country were shut down.

The Massachusetts Senate voted 36 to 1 to condemn the mining "in the strongest possible terms."

Six Democratic governors joined in a telegram urging Nixon "to reverse this grave and dangerous policy decision."

Democratic Gov. Frank Licht of Rhode Island, Kenneth Curtis of Maine, Patrick J. Lucey of Wisconsin, Milton J. Shapp of Pennsylvania, John J. Gilligan of Ohio and Wendell R. Anderson of Minnesota signed the telegram.

Added Casualties Found in Disaster

By JACK MAYNE
Associated Press Writer

KELLOGG, Idaho (AP) — Rescue crews probing the burned-out Sunshine silver mine have discovered 11 more bodies. But fear of smoke and gas and lack of communications has slowed efforts to go deeper in search of 33 missing men.

The 11 victims raised to 58 the number of known dead from the fire that swept through the mine nine days ago. Four of the latest victims were found Wednesday night at the 3,400-foot level. The other seven were discovered early today at 3,700 feet. Mine Manager Marvin Chase said it appeared the seven had been trying to escape smoke when they were overcome.

The aim of the rescue team was to go to 5,200 feet where the missing miners were believed to be.

Two men were brought out alive Tuesday after being entombed one week in another shaft.

After finding the bodies Wednesday night, the rescue crew spent half an hour sealing off the shaft with inflatable bulkheads covered with foam rubber. The rescuers acknowledged that they were fearful of further smoke and gas seepage even though air conditions appeared to be satisfactory.

They said the sealing operation was essential to preserve the escape route in the event the missing miners at the very bottom of the shaft had survived and were untouched by the gases in the higher level.

The rescuers informed mine officials on the surface that similar sealing efforts would be required at the 3,550-foot level and once again at 3,700 feet deep.

Experts said this meant that the goal of 5,200 feet was many hours away.

In Pittsburgh, Pa., I. W. Abel, president of the United Steel Workers of America which represents the silver mines, said emergency equipment at the mine "was lacking and training and preparation for its use was totally inadequate or lacking."

Abel said the findings were determined by a task force he sent to Kellogg to investigate the fire.

Bedspring Controversy

According to Vice President Agnew's office Wednesday this bedspring was sent by Maine's Democratic Gov. Kenneth Curtis a day after the Vice President's car was pelted with food and debris by antiwar protesters when Agnew was in Maine to speak to a convention. Agnew plans to return the spread, which Curtis denies sending, with a letter upbraiding him for defending the protesters' action.

Shelbina Officer MIG Ace

SAIGON (AP) — Lt. Randy Cunningham of Shelbina, Mo., and Lt. (j.g.) William Driscoll of Framingham, Mass., downed three MIGs over North Vietnam Wednesday to become America's first aces of the Vietnam war.

Shortly after, a surface-to-air missile hit their F4 Phantom, and the two fliers ditched the damaged plane in the Gulf of Tonkin. A helicopter picked them up and returned them to the carrier Constellation.

Both Cunningham, the pilot, and Driscoll, his radar intercept officer, were reported in good condition.

The Navy kills were scored in a dogfight over Hai Duong, halfway between Hanoi and Haiphong. Another Phantom crew from the Constellation, Lt. Matt Connelly and Lt. Thomas Blonski, were credited with two MIGs, and a third Constellation crew got another.

Before President Lyndon B. Johnson halted the bombing of North Vietnam in November 1968, Col. Robin Olds was the only flier who came close to the five kills required for qualification as an ace. Olds, an ace from World War II and the husband of former movie actress Ella Raines, shot down four MIGs in 1967.

Cunningham and Driscoll got their first North Vietnamese jet on Jan. 19, not long after their air wing reached Vietnam waters aboard the constellation. Their second kill was on Monday.

Malden OKs Bond

MALDEN, Mo. (AP) — School bonds totaling $198,000 for construction of a combined high school-elementary school library and renovation of an elementary school building have been approved by voters in the Malden School District.

The vote was 469-81. Returns of the Tuesday election were made official Wednesday.

Talk Shows Endangered On Tube?

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Cavett's show is on three months probation at ABC. David Frost will drop his syndicated series in midsummer in favor of his weekly revue and occasional specials. Does this mean the nighttime talk show is an endangered television species?

Opinion among the experts is split, but the consensus seems to be that the problem faced by these two and some others is more that of supply and demand than the quality of talk.

"I think there is a parallel in NBC's experience years ago with the 'Today' show," said a network executive who asked for anonymity. "There had been nothing like that in the morning when the show started. It caught on with the public and the advertisers. Then CBS came along and threw in some competition—Jack Paar and Ernie Kovacs. They disappeared because by that time 'Today' was entrenched with its audience. It was hard to fight it."

The same pattern, he believes, is making the other end of the broadcasting day a battle ground now. The "Tonight" show on NBC became popular with Steve Allen and went on to be the most talked-about show on the air during the Jack Paar day. Now it has nailed down a big and apparently unmovable audience with Johnny Carson.

"There has been lots of competition," the executive continued. "ABC tried with Jerry Lewis and Joey Bishop before Cavett. CBS had Merv Griffin. The truth is that there are just a certain number of TV sets that stay on in the late evening. When too many shows compete for the same audience, and for the advertisers' dollars, it is a set-up for financial disaster—for the networks and for their affiliates."

Another student of television, a former network vice president, brushed off Cavett's troubles as "a cyclical phenomenon of television."

"It is not unusual," he said. "One type of show does well and then the networks or the packagers think they can get advertisers for another show like it. Then the field gets crowded and the most recent ones or the marginal ones drop off."

"Compare it with shelf space in a store: When there are a lot of brands of cereal crowding limited space, the ones that don't sell well or come along too late don't make the shelf." Cavett, with about 140 stations airing his program, and Frost, with a syndication of around 70 stations, have suffered, in the opinion of others, because "the same people kept appearing on both shows."

"Frost and Cavett worked at cross purposes," said one. "In fact, I always think of Cavett, in his approach to interviews, as the American Frost."

Gas Mask Stops Habit

Dear Ann Landers: I have some advice for the woman who is allergic to her husband's cigarette smoke. It seems the lunkhead insists on smoking the room blue when guests are present because he knows she won't make a scene.

My sister had the same problem. Here's how she solved it. She went to the army surplus store and bought a gas mask. The minute her husband reached for a cigarette she put on the gas mask. Needless to say this gesture attracted a great deal of attention and raised some embarrassing questions. When it became apparent that Mr. Marvelous was an inconsiderate heel who put his pleasures before his wife's health, he cut it out.

If this sounds like a radical measure let me assure you that the situation warranted it. Please print this letter for all the folks out there who are sick of inhaling other people's cigarette smoke and would like to take some positive action. — Winston Salem

Dear Win: We checked the army surplus stores in Chicago and learned that gas masks are available for $7.95. Thank you for the suggestion. Many a serious message has been relayed on the wings of a "joke."

Dear Ann Landers: I was the Other Woman and now I am the Second Wife. This letter will run counter to the Puritan ethic, so you probably won't print it. But someone ought to make it clear that there are husbands with legitimate gripes — men who tried to make a marriage work, found it impossible, and shoved off.

My husband's first wife nearly doubled her weight within ten years. She ran a pig sty instead of a home, produced several children her husband didn't want (and wasn't ready for), became a screaming hag-mother, was jealous of her husband's friends, spent beyond his income and drove him crazy with her nagging.

I did nothing to attract her husband's attention. I was simply there when he needed someone to talk to. It could have been one of several women, but I happened to be "the one." Contented husbands don't look for outside company. They go home to their families after work. The first wife has the first chance. Whether or not she succeeds depends on how good she is at meeting the challenges of marriage. — Indignant

Dear Dig: Your position must have some validity because I'm hearing from more and more people who say their second marriage is a lot better than their first. Apparently some husbands, and some wives, too, must live through an unsuccessful marriage in order to know how to make a second marriage work. Expensive lesson? You bet, but it's the only way some folks can learn.

Dear Ann: Why do people tip the waitress when the cook spends hours preparing the food and the dishwasher does the dirty work? The waitress sits and smokes while the REAL work is being done in the kitchen. All she does is carry out the plates and collect that nice tip. I wish you'd blast this unfair practice. — Mad In Sioux Falls

Dear Mad: The waitress is the one whose personality (or lack of it) makes the first impression on the guest. She takes the order and carries the trays that sometimes weigh 30 pounds. She also keeps her eye on the table and makes sure everyone has what he wants — more water, more coffee, steak sauce, more butter, extra napkin, etc. A good waitress doesn't have time to sit around and smoke. She works like a horse and deserves the tip.

Sees Warm Fall In New Fashions

NEW YORK (AP) — Women should have no trouble keeping warm this fall—with all the news in coats and jackets. At Blassport, designer Bill Blass updates blazers in his sportswear collection with matching trompe l'oeil sweaters. He also likes the topper raincoat and the wrap jacket.

He shows the wrap look in a quiet tweed jacket with lynx collar, $280, and matching slacks, $70.

Or there's a red coat in a new machine-washable simulated suede.

This suede look-alike fabric is shown in a short orange jacket with matching slacks, $280, and in full length skirts, trimmed in lynx.

The monotone idea for separates includes camel cashmere sweater, slacks and jacket. Or a soft, deep blue combo.

But there are plenty of plaid combinations, including sweaters.

The trousers that look good with so many of the coats are leather-belted and pleated at the waist. So are the skirts. U-necked sweaters, at $20, can be worn with blouses—or reversed and worn alone for a bare-backed feeling.

The Cuddlecoat collection by Victor Joris and La Flaque de Paris, a division of Cuddlecoat, unleashed short vinyl jackets, plaid capes and full-length fur-trimmed evening coats.

"Lavish fur trims have always been big sellers," Joris said.

The topper was shown in shiny black with a very full back—and in a straighter blue and white checked style with red trim. This three-quarter length may look best with pants, but it does all right with a pleated skirt, too.

There were enough knee-length coats for the women who prefer a more conservative route into fall. One white coat was cut slightly fuller than last year's A-line.

"That's a happy medium for people who aren't ready for a radical change," said Joris, adding he likes the increased fullness of coats.

"For some reason, I've always thought of luxury as sort of looser, soft and flowing. Maybe it's a childhood thing. All the rich ladies you ever saw had wrap coats with fur collars."

The Cuddlecoat line runs $130 to $600. The La Flaque coats are priced $75 to $110.

No Connection Is Seen Between 'Pot' and Sex

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government commission says marijuana makes sex better for lots of smokers, but it's not a love potion for everyone.

Although youngsters who experiment with pot are likely to experiment with sex, too, the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse found no evidence that one leads to the other.

The commission said the drug appears to intensify pleasurable experiences and heighten the senses for many users.

"It is this fact which probably explains why substantial proportions of marijuana users characterize their sexual experiences under the influence of the drug as particularly intense, prolonged, sensuous and pleasurable," the commission said.

But many other smokers report no such effect, and marijuana may actually diminish sexual pleasure for a few, the commission said.

It all appears to depend on what you expect. The commission said research indicates the more a person uses marijuana and expects it to make sex better, the more likely it is to do so.

The commission's findings on pot and sex occupy five pages buried in a recently released 1,282-page appendix to its marijuana report, which was published earlier this year.

The main report omitted any mention of the sex findings. One commission official said they would have drawn attention away from the main findings, which recommended discouraging use of pot while removing criminal penalties for private use.

The commission found that substantial numbers of persons say they are more interested in sex after smoking marijuana. Also, it found evidence that smoking pot reduces inhibitions and allows a person to respond more freely to his or her sexual desires.

But there's no evidence that marijuana causes any physical craving for sex. In other words, it's not the aphrodisiac many of its fans claim it to be, the commission said.

Research also shows marijuana users are more sexually active than non-users.

One survey of more than 500 college undergraduates found 72 per cent who smoked marijuana also had engaged in sex before marriage, while only 34 per cent of non-smokers did so.

Says Area Is Losing Population

(Democrat-Capital Service)

LaMONTE — Mike Cordes, director of the economic development section of the Missouri Valley Human Resource Development Corporation, was the guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Lions Club here Monday.

Cordes said that the six-county region served by his office has been losing population for several years because of mechanization of farms and lack of job opportunities. He said he is attempting to develop a program that would attract industries to the area.

A research project conducted by his office has revealed that 111 types of industries are suited to the six-county region. Criteria for selecting an industry include employment of at least 50 persons with its present location in a major metropolitan region without any branch plants in rural areas.

Mrs. W. C. Jones, chairman of the LaMonte Community Betterment Club, noted that LaMonte has two industrial sites. She pointed out that a community profile prepared by the Betterment Club is available to industries which are looking for a site.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wasson and Mrs. and Mrs. Ernest Barker were hosts for the dinner meeting.

K. C. Attorney Is Found Guilty

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City attorney Louis Wagner was found guilty by a U.S. District Court jury Wednesday on charges of conspiracy to introduce drugs into the U.S. Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.

The jury found Wagner guilty of the one charge but freed him of a charge of obstructing the government investigation in the case.

Also freed of charges of conspiracy and introduction of drugs into the prison was Mrs. Joyce Lee Martin, of Kansas City, who had been indicted with Wagner.

Two other men were indicted on the charge of conspiracy to introduce and introduction of amphetamine pills into the penitentiary. They are James Harvey Bradley, former market operator in Kansas City, and Bunchie White. Both men are now inmates of the U.S. Penitentiary, Marion, Ill.

Kansan Awarded For His School

GIRARD, Kan. (AP) — Robert Beckdolt, a retired Army cavalry man, has received the title "Distinguished Kansan" and a certificate from Gov. Robert Docking.

Docking named Beckdolt a distinguished Kansan Wednesday and cited him for his unique school in Girard for the training of farriers. The school which teaches the trade of shoeing horses has graduated 42 farriers in its first year. The school is one of the few farrier schools in the nation and the only one in Kansas.

Beckdolt, a native of Batesville, Ark., learned his trade as a boy and practiced it during his long service in the Army cavalry. He was stationed at Ft. Myer, Va., where he was in charge of the stables at that Army post.

Dollar Pressured By Vietnam Moves

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's Vietnam moves are putting no major pressure on the dollar overseas, the Treasury Department says.

"The dollar has been basically fairly steady," Treasury Secretary John B. Connally said.

"I don't think it's in any danger whatsoever."

Monetary officials at the Treasury Department said the sudden surge in the price of gold on the free market after Nixon's move was not all caused by reaction to the war effort.

One Treasury official said that the free gold market is always volatile. One reason for the sudden jump was a report that the free price of gold might go up to $85 an ounce by 1980, officials said.

"That might have been an influence," he said. "But if you invest in gold that would figure out to a return of about six and one-third per cent before taxes and it is not a very attractive return on the investment."

Nevertheless, officials acknowledge, the President's decision probably had some impact on the gold market despite other factors present.

The free market price of gold has no direct relation to the stability of the dollar. The value of the dollar is pegged to the official price of gold of $38 an ounce.

Connally said he thought the financial impact to Nixon's moves were less than expected, particularly in the stock market. "I expected a more violent reaction than occurred," Connally said. "It was somewhat milder than I anticipated."

Connally also said that he expected substantial progress will be made later this month on naming the major countries that will shape the new monetary system.

Fill fourth with two pieces of flat absorbent cotton in the middle of which you've sprinkled about one-eighth ounce sachet powder. Take Tots To Visit At Nursing Home

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I am writing in response to Marie's letter in which she expressed her thought that administrators of nursing homes should prevent children and babies from visiting because they are often carriers of colds and other illnesses and because they run up and down the halls. Surely Marie does not have anybody in nursing homes or she could not say anything like that. I have worked as an occupational therapist for three years and find the greatest pride the elderly have is in their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. They look forward to their visits for weeks in advance. They tell their friends and, when the visitors arrive, parade them down the halls showing off the home to the visitors, and their family to the other residents. Even the most senile will light up when a child is near. No matter how crippled a patient may be, a baby always brings a smile.

Nursing homes are for recuperating people and also home for many who will never go or live anyplace else. Children bring happiness into the lives of these people. Marie, adults carry germs, too, and even nurses and administrators. Residents of nursing homes are like customers and you have to try to keep them happy and comfortable until the dear Lord decides he can do a better job of it. How long would you want to live if you were confined to bed and were never allowed to see a new grandchild? A person's strong will to live can fight off many an illness or virus. Take away something as important as someone's own family and you have infected him or her with something more serious than a physical malady. —B. G.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I bought a high antique desk that has a lot of compartments with spilled ink in them. This looks as if it had been there for years. Does anyone have an idea on how I can remove these old ink spots without injuring the nice old look of the desk? —MRS. H. R.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is having a standing appointment at the beauty shop and then have to sit and wait long past my time while the operator "works in" someone else. —LENA

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve and irritation is that when I badly need to use my telephone I find children talking on the line and they may continue for an hour or so. Parents, please, discipline your children and set limits on their conversations when you have a party line as the other party is entitled to its use, too. I cannot afford a private line and find this most annoying. —MRS. A. C. S.

DEAR POLLY — If you find it necessary to hang things on the back of a bathroom or bedroom door but you can see them through the crack when the door is open or back against the wall, lightly nail a piece of 3/4- or 1/2-inch round along the back edge of the door from hinge to hinge. When the door is open the quarter round fills the crack and nothing is visible as it hangs back there. My bathroom is opposite the opening from my living room to the hall that leads off the bedrooms both ways and everyone could see the towel racks on the back of the bathroom door until I did this. —AGNES

DEAR POLLY — When hammering delicate or upholstery tacks, put an adhesive-backed bandage over the head of the hammer. This will prevent making horrible marks on the woodwork or walls if you miss the tack or nail. —JOHN

DEAR POLLY — A.T.G. and other news vendors complain of the money they lose but our Pet Peeve is just the reverse. Those same vendors never mention the extra money they find in their paper racks. Those racks often take the customer's coins and do not pay off with a paper. I find this happening all too often. —MRS. E. D.

Say Food Supply May Be Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mining of seven North Vietnamese ports could cut down food supplies for the country's civilians while curbing the flow of arms from Communist allies to Hanoi's military forces.

As much as 40 per cent of the tonnage arriving in North Vietnam from the Soviet Union and other Communist nations has included wheat, flour, rice, soybeans and agricultural machinery.

Even in normal times North Vietnam does not grow enough food to meet its needs, U.S. experts say. And food imports are believed to have become even more important since extensive floods ruined part of North Vietnam's rice crop.

Defense officials acknowledge that food ships, as well as arms ships, will be kept out of North Vietnamese ports. They say the only way to discriminate is to stop the vessels and search them, but the United States has disavowed any intention to do so because, it contends the current action is not a blockade of North Vietnam.

According to recent intelligence reports, about 200,000 tons of supplies were delivered in North Vietnam last month, the vast bulk of it through Haiphong. About 2.2 million tons were shipped in over a year's time, the reports said.

The Haiphong port complex has been modernized and expanded during the more than three years it was free from U.S. bombing.

Virtually all of North Vietnam's heavy military equipment, including tanks, artillery trucks, and surface-to-air missiles, reaches North Vietnam from Russia through the Haiphong port.

Most of the oil and gasoline products which power North Vietnam's supply trucks and tanks also come through Haiphong.

North Vietnam's leadership has tried to reduce reliance on Haiphong and has acted to develop smaller ports to handle more of the incoming ship traffic. Two ports, originally used mostly to export hard coal to Japan, have in the past three years been upgraded to accommodate deep-draft ships.

Man, Pet Baboon Share Same Cell

GALLATIN, Tenn. (AP) — Robin Curley pleaded with Judge John Hamilton not to put him in jail because his best friend, a pet baboon, would be homeless.

Now Curley and his baboon, Sarah share a cell in the Sumner County jail.

Curley charged with receiving and concealing a prized Tennessee walking horse, was jailed after he was unable to post $6,500 bond.

"I was going to leave her at my mother's house," Curley, 31, said of his 60-pound pet. "But I drove out of the driveway and she started running after me in the rain, dragging her chain and a heavy weight."

Fliers Revealing Logical Reaction

MIAMI (AP) — A study of some 200 American airmen rescued after they were shot down in Southeast Asia shows the majority reacted logically to the stress situations.

Dr. Anchar F. Zeller, an Air Force research scientist from Norton Air Force Base, Calif., said the responses of the downed fliers "ranged from optimism to sheer panic."

Zeller addressed the aerospace Medical Association convention in Miami on Tuesday.

The 200 fliers studied ranked from enlisted men to colonels, and 134 of them carried out precise, logical efforts to help rescuers, Zeller said.

Sixty-six showed abnormal reactions including deep depression and panic. Some yelled "into their microphones, berating the rescue forces for real and imagined ineptness," he said.

Very few of the downed airmen showed much concern for food or water, Zeller said, and only four reported that they took time out to pray.

"But there were two fliers who just had to have a cigarette," he added.

Zeller said nearly all the airmen reported great discomfort from insect bites.

He said six of the 200 men were spotted by enemy forces and managed to escape, and two came face to face with the enemy and escaped.

The fliers escaped from their damaged aircraft in a number of ways. Some used ejection seats and others walked out on the wing and jumped, Zeller said.

Twelve of the 200 came down in trees and had to be rescued as they dangled from the branches in their parachute harnesses, he said.

One man was doubly lucky—or cursed, depending how you look at it, Zeller said.

"He was shot down, picked up, shot down and started all over again."

Chevelle and Impala. We've packed them for your vacation.

Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe and Impala Sport Sedan.

There are certain things no family should start out on vacation without.

Things that will help make your trip more enjoyable and less worrisome. We've packed many such things into our Chevelles and Impalas, the two most popular cars in their fields.

Chevelle: The most popular intermediate.

Impala: The most popular full-size car year after year.

"Talking" seat belts.

Traveling around, getting in and out of the car a lot, it's easy to forget about buckling up.

Consequently, every new Impala and Chevelle has a front seat belt reminder system that speaks up if you try to start out before buckling.

A buzzer buzzes and a light flashes to make sure you get the message.

And that's just one of many protective features now being built into these cars.

Feel their muscles.

Out on the road, it's reassuring to realize you're riding in a car that's well built.

What you get with an Impala or Chevelle is a body that's an all-welded steel superstructure, painstakingly put together. In other words, a Body by Fisher.

You get a sturdy steel guard beam in every door for added protection in case of side impact.

You get a steel cargo guard that walls off the passenger compartment from the trunk and helps keep everything in its place.

You get double steel panels in the doors, in the hood, in the deck lid. Up inside the fenders: inner fenders to protect against corrosion and kicked-up stones.

What you get, in both of these popular cars, is a lot of built-in strength and durability.

Good things to have along as you travel.

Let's talk comfort.

Another reason why Chevelle and Impala are the top cars in their fields is their comfort.

Impala is one of the roomiest cars around.

And Chevelle, though slightly smaller, gives you room for six. Plus plenty of baggage.

But comfort is more than just room. So at all four wheels we've put big coil springs to gentle up your ride.

And between the body and the frame we've placed a network of little rubber cushions to help keep things quiet inside.

There's even more.

Here are a few more items you'll be taking along this summer if you travel in a new Impala or Chevelle:

A tough acrylic lacquer finish.

A battery with its terminals on the side so corrosion can't build up.

An engine that operates efficiently on no-lead, low-lead, or regular fuel.

Why, on Impala, you even get power steering, power disc brakes and Turbo Hydra-matic transmission—all standard.

A beautiful choice.

We suggest you stop by your Chevrolet dealer's soon, to take a close look at the 1972 Chevelle or Impala.

It's nice to know that whichever way you go, you'll be getting a whole lot of car.

Have a good trip.

Tragedy Claims 5 In K.C.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A medical technician killed his wife and three of his four children, set fires in his home and then shot himself to death here Wednesday, Kansas City police reported.

The police said Virgil L. Reynolds, 27, who was described by relatives as despondent, apparently shot and stabbed the members of his family before killing a pet dog, setting four small fires in the home and then shooting himself. Another daughter was shot but survived.

Firemen found the bodies as they pushed their way through the smoke-filled rooms of the small house.

The mother, Mrs. Gloria Reynolds, 28, and the couple's 10-month-old daughter, Alia, were found on the parents' blood-stained bed. Police said the mother had been stabbed twice, once in the chest and once in the back with an 8-inch butcher knife.

Another child, Yvette, 2, shot in the head, was found lying in the hallway, and a 6-year-old daughter, Carlotta, and Reynolds were found sprawled in the living room. She had been stabbed once in the chest and shot in the back of the head.

Another daughter, Patricia, 9, was found in the bathroom, stabbed in the head. She was carried outside by firemen and later taken to General Hospital where her condition was described as critical.

A policeman looks at the body of Virgil Reynolds, who shot and killed his wife and three of his daughters Wednesday in Kansas City before shooting himself. He also wounded a fourth daughter. One of the children is beside Reynolds, who was supposed to have said he "didn't want his children to grow up in this lousy world." (UPI)

Astronaut Involved In Crash

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The third man to walk on the moon bailed out of his Navy jet Wednesday night and floated down to within 100 yards of the Bergstrom Air Force Base operations center near here.

The T38 aircraft of astronaut Charles C. Conrad Jr., 41, nose-dived into a field in the Texas hill country two miles from Bergstrom.

Witnesses said only a tail section bearing the letters "NASA" was recognizable.

A spokesman at the Manned Spacecraft Center outside Houston confirmed that the pilot was Conrad and that he was "okay." He underwent routine tests at Bergstrom.

Conrad is scheduled to command the first long-term Skylab mission in Space, now set for next April. It will last 28 days.

No cause was given for the crash. In response to a query, a NASA spokesman said he did not ask if the plane ran out of fuel on its trip from Dover, Del., to Houston via Dobbins Air Force Base near Marietta, Ga. The spokesman confirmed Conrad was diverted twice from his original destination of Ellington Air Force Base at Houston.

Conrad, a Navy captain, has made three space flights. He flew the earth-orbiting Gemini 5 and Gemini 11 and was commander of the Apollo 12 flight in November 1969. On that mission Conrad landed on the moon and conducted moonwalks with astronaut Alan Bean.

Lineman Perishes

LABADIE, Mo. (AP) — A lineman working at the Union Electric Co. power plant at this Jefferson County town fell to his death Wednesday when he slipped from an 80-foot high tension line tower.

Franklin County officials identified the victim as Larry R. Crews, 27, of Sullivan, Mo.

By LEW FERGUSON
Associated Press Writer

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Law enforcement officers continued a waiting game here today after youthful Vietnam war protesters occupied the University of Kansas administration building for the second consecutive night.

Top law officials emerged from a meeting shortly before 5 a.m. today to announce they had decided against trying to remove an estimated 250 of the protesters who bedded down overnight in the hallways of the administration building.

There were indications no effort would be made to clear the building, at least not before this afternoon.

Of more concern to police for much of the night than the demonstrators in Strong Hall—the university administration building—was a group of about 300 marchers who spent several hours walking Lawrence streets.

Police arrested about a dozen of the marchers when they refused to move after sitting down in the street. Those arrested had not been charged by early today.

One youth also was arrested in Strong Hall, charged with possession of marijuana and released on bond. He was identified as Frank M. Kline, 20, a KU freshman from McPherson, Kan.

Officers had planned to order the protesters out of the administration building at the normal 10 p.m. closing time. But this plan was abandoned when a large number of those who had attended an antiwar rally in Allen Field House on campus Wednesday night moved to Strong Hall to reinforce the sit-in contingent. At that point an estimated 1,000 persons were in Strong. The number overnight fluctuated between 150 to 500.

The marchers, who officers believed were responsible for several broken windows reported along their route, served to divert law officials' attention from thoughts of removing the protesters from Strong Hall.

The demonstrators, made up largely of KU students, vowed to remain inside Strong Hall until more of their demands are met by the university.

Included are demands that university officials issue statements repudiating U.S. involvement in Vietnam, and that protesting students be allowed to delay taking final examinations and still get credit for this quarter's course work.

The university senate approved Wednesday letting students withdraw from courses if they have passing grades. However, students who do this will lose a credit for their courses. Their only benefit is that they are not assessed a failing grade.

Final exams began Wednesday.

The protesters discussed early today extending their sit-in tactic to "military targets," including Forbes Air Force Base at Topeka and the Douglas County Draft Board office and National Guard and Army Reserve armories here.

They made no decisions on any course of action, however. Their main goal remained to continue their occupancy of Strong Hall.

Col. William Albott, superintendent of the Kansas Highway Patrol, told the young people in Strong Hall that Gov. Robert Docking "will not allow, and neither will I allow, this university to be closed or any part of it."

Albott said if a decision is made to order the protesters out of the administration building they will be given 15 minutes notice. "I would hope it would be done in a peaceful manner—on all our parts."

Urban and Rural Status Equalized in Revamping

WASHINGTON (AP) — The city-dweller and the farmer would have equal status in dealings with community development officials under a Cabinet reorganization plan approved by a congressional committee.

The House Government Operations Committee voted 26 to 8 Wednesday to set up a new department of community development.

Reps. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., chairman of the committee and Frank Horton, R-N.Y., a senior GOP member, said President Nixon indicated he would sign the legislation into law if Congress passes it. The bill is drawn essentially along the lines of Nixon's government reorganization plan sent to Congress last year.

The new department, would include four administrators—separate ones for urban development, rural development, community transportation, and housing.

The rural agency, the committee's major revision from the President's original proposal, would pull together programs of the Farmers Home Administration and rural electrification and telephone services currently handled by the Agriculture Department.

This was described by backers as a bid to win rural support, since the original reorganization plan had drawn fire from farm groups claiming urban interests would dominate the new department.

Democrats cast all the dissenting votes in the committee's final action on the legislation. Republican Rep. Charles Thone of Nebraska voted "present."

The committee rejected amendments that would have deleted some farm programs and it turned down an effort to keep highway programs under the Transportation Department.

The new department would absorb the entire Housing and Urban Development Department, and would bring together such major activities as highway building and urban mass-transit programs from the Transportation Department.

'Killer' McKenna Can Joke

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "Killer" McKenna jokes and teaches while the cons and guards work hard, side by side, to learn.

That's the way it goes twice a week in the sociology class of Dr. James J. McKenna Jr. at the state correctional institution in nearby Graterford, largest prison in Pennsylvania with a population of 1,400.

"I think this is the only course in the country offered inside a jail to prison guards and inmates together for college credit," McKenna said. "And we're going to offer more in the fall."

The professor is on the faculty of Villanova University, heading the criminal justice section in the sociology department, and his nickname is student-derived from his allegedly killing tests and tough grading.

"It sure gets a big laugh at Graterford," said McKenna, who has half a dozen convicted murderers—two of them sentenced to die in the electric chair—in his class of 46, of whom 25 are guards.

Attendance is no problem for McKenna, and he never takes roll.

"They rarely miss. Where else would they go?"

"When the class first began inmates sat together up front, and the guards took seats in the rear, also in bunches," McKenna explained. "I broke this up by sitting the men alphabetically. Now the guards and inmates study together, and prepare reports together."

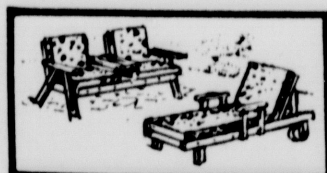

Horse, Helicopter Pressed To Service

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Police used that old time Texas law enforcement tool, the horse, along with their newest thing, the helicopter, to try to catch a thief.

Officers arrested a woman and two men on charges of stealing a car Tuesday but a third man escaped into a nearby wooded area. Two young men came riding along as the suspect ran so the policemen promptly borrowed their horses.

Patrolmen J.C. Davis and A.R. Black pounded into the woods on their mounts as a police helicopter circled above the areas. But officers said the suspect "just vanished."

Predict Record For Exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bar- ring a further labor tieup at the nation's docks, farm exports for the year ending June 30 are expected to be near the record $7.8 billion set in 1970-71, according to Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Clarence D. Palmby.

"We now expect, if the ports remain open, that we will finish up on June 30 with exports not too far from the record of 1971, and with another sizable agricultural contribution to the balance of trade and the balance of payments," Palmby said today.

The export outlook was included in a speech Palmby prepared for a meeting here of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce.

"In fact," Palmby said, "shipments through the first nine months of the fiscal year totaled one per cent more than in the same period a year earlier."

The Agriculture Department official said farm exports have made an average net contribution to the U.S. balance of payments of about $700 million annually the past three years, including a $1.1 billion plus last year.

Palmby said federal farm programs are "market-oriented" and are aimed at helping farmers to compete more effectively in markets both at home and abroad.

"They recognize the shift in American agriculture from a basic grain to a livestock economy as consumer demands have changed," Palmby said.

"They are directed toward the use of grain through livestock rather than its storage, and this has resulted in a substantial increase to our farmers in gross receipts and net income."

On Monday, the Agriculture Department predicted net farm income would rise this year by $2 billion, to a record $17.7 billion, largely because of improved prices for livestock and certain other commodities.

Palmby said the shift to livestock from cash grain production is occurring in other countries, too. However, he said, trade barriers still exist which prevent full access to major markets.

"One of our major concerns is the agricultural policy of our best customer, the European Community, where variable import levies protect artificial grain prices and eliminate the competitive advantage of efficient producers, such as the United States," Palmby said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service is making available to nearly 3,000 county and state offices specially prepared material containing portions of statements, speeches and articles by federal farm officials.

Entitled "Excerpts," the material is distributed periodically to state and local ASCS offices which are told:

"Material in Excerpts should prove useful in newsletters, speeches, interviews, broadcasts and as background information for ASCS personnel."

The forwarding of such material to field offices is not new, but the use of it in a separate publication is recent, a spokesman said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's green-thumb time and the Agriculture Department has cranked up its annual how-to-do-it machine.

Among the latest: A 12-page publication on transplanting trees and shrubs. Prepared by horticulturists of the Agricultural Research Service, the booklet includes step-by-step instructions for digging up and replanting greenery.

Copies of "Transplanting Ornamental Trees and Shrubs," Home and Garden Bulletin No. 192, are available for 10 cents each from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

We Built It...

Let's Staff It!

It has been said many times, "When Sedalia citizens understand a need, they respond." So, let's take a look at the need for the proposed school levy to be voted on May 16th, and reason it out.

As a starting point, let's review our recent past as it concerns our school needs. The people of Sedalia School District No. 200 were told before they approved the construction of the new Junior High School that the building of it was only a part of the total job, and that an increase in the school levy would undoubtedly be necessary to provide for the additional teaching staff which would be required to take care of the school. This was explained on several occasions to everyone during the campaign to get voter approval for building the school.

Now let's move on to the ultimate purpose of the new school. The goal was the better education of the school district's young people. This can only be accomplished with a qualified teaching staff and those needed to administer and man the school.

The Junior High School is nearing completion and will be ready for the fall school term which begins on September 5th. It's now time to take our next step to complete the job we set out to do. That is, to provide the educational opportunities we planned to give our young people when we agreed to construct the new building.

That's what the 65-cent school levy we will vote on May 16th is all about. Here, in a nutshell, is what your favorable vote will help to accomplish:

1. Provide the needed teaching staff at the new Junior High School.
2. Provide facilities and staff for kindergarten education for our pre-school age children, as is now required by state law.
3. Provide for vocational-technical training for our junior and senior-high school students, who may not plan a college education, so they may begin preparatory training for worthwhile careers in the business, industrial and service sectors of our economy.
4. Provide for a quality education for all of our students so our Sedalia School System may again take its place among those schools in our state maintaining an AAA rating. Our school system was so rated for many years until we faltered somewhat in our responsibilities a couple of years ago, and lost it.

We believe there is no one in this school district who would approve of a second rate school system, or of a second rate education for our young people. We have the opportunity to correct the situation as it now exists, but it will take the help of all thinking and concerned citizens of this community.

You may inquire, "We know that passage of the school levy is important and necessary if our children are to have the educational opportunities they need, but how can we get a majority vote to approve passage?"

You have the answer. If you as a concerned citizen will join with mothers, fathers, older sisters and brothers, aunts and uncles, and grandmothers and grandfathers of our school children, there can be only one answer on May 16th. That answer will be an overwhelming approval of the school levy and a conclusive demonstration of your concern for the future of Sedalia's young people.

GIVE OUR CHILDREN THEIR CHANCE TO COMPETE IN TODAY'S WORLD —
Vote Yes For The Levy On Tuesday, May 16th.

Boyle Denies Fund Misuse

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle has testified before a federal grand jury that to the best of his knowledge a special union fund which the government claims figured in a murder payoff was used only for legitimate purposes, a UMW attorney reports.

"When the murders first occurred, Mr. Boyle denied any association with the murders," UMW General Counsel Edward L. Carey said Wednesday. "He denied it every time the issue has been presented to him, and he denied it today, just as he did in the past."

As the grand jury continued its investigation into the slayings of UMW insurgent Joseph M. "Jock" Yablonski, his wife and their daughter, a source close to the case said the government apparently is unable to pinpoint who made the payoff.

"Everybody seems to be kind of groping around, looking for a handle," the source said after Boyle appeared before the grand jury at its invitation. "There are a few good leads, and it's very possible some of these will pan out in the next couple of days or weeks."

"But of all the investigations investigating this, I don't think anybody has found the key yet. If somebody did have it, they'd have moved by now."

Boyle testified for more than an hour and Carey said later at a news conference that the UMW chief had again disavowed any knowledge of the killings.

Chief Prosecutor Richard A. Sprague charged last week that he had reason to believe Boyle helped set up a special UMW research and information fund to finance the murders.

But Carey said Boyle told the grand jury the fund was used to the best of his knowledge only for legitimate union organizing purposes.

The attorney added that National Labor Relations Board reports showed that the fund, which totaled $19,970, was spent for union organizing work in the UMW's District 19.

Overzealous Demolition

A wrecking crew in Belleville, Ill., smashed a big hole in the side of the St. Clair County Courthouse this week despite a recent city ordinance declaring the building an historic landmark. The city and county have been at odds over tearing the building down, with the city wishing to preserve it. (UPI)

Mills Campaign Boost Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, whose campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination has set no large bonfires in the primaries, was expected to announce today that he is stepping up his effort.

The Arkansas Democrat called a news conference to discuss his political plans.

Sources close to the Mills presidential effort said he will lay out a strategy of ignoring the remaining primaries but mounting a major effort to line up delegates not committed by votes in their states or otherwise.

One source said a committee of 30 has already been set up to go after key delegations.

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee which handles all tax legislation, went into the Democratic contest with the backing of a number of Congressional colleagues of various shades of opinion, home-town supporters and, reportedly, business interests.

He described his own candidacy as a long-shot, with success largely depending on a deadlocked Democratic convention.

Mills' share of the primary votes disappointed his more optimistic supporters especially in New Hampshire, where a well-financed write-in campaign was conducted in his behalf, and in Massachusetts, where he campaigned actively.

But some of them are now saying that the chances for the kind of deadlock on which they pin their hopes have been improved by the primaries in which Sens. George McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama have outdistanced other candidates, including Sen. Edmund S. Muskie.

They argue that Mills has a chance to attract the center vote for which Muskie originally was considered a strong contender.

Alligator Is Kept Away From Students

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — A banana-loving alligator named Alley has become a bit too chummy with the pupils at Saturn Elementary School.

So school officials, figuring there might be a slip twist the banana and the toothy gator's lip, have decided to fence in Alley and keep him away from the youngsters.

Alley lives in a canal a short distance from the school along with another gator, Gordon Crouch, an assistant school superintendent, said children go to the canal and call, "Here, Alley. Here, Alley. They slap the water to get him, then feed him their bananas and lunch sandwiches."

One first-grader recently fell into the canal while attempting to feed the alligator and had to be rescued by a school employee, Crouch said.

Gladstone Lovely Warrensburg Pick

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — Kali Jeane Ball, 21, a Central Missouri State junior from Gladstone, Mo., was crowned Miss Warrensburg here Wednesday night. She will represent this city in the Miss Missouri pageant.

Runnersup in the contest were: Nancy Daniels, Kansas City; Nance Beaudoin, St. Louis; Mary Augustine, Morrison, Mo.; and Barbara Wheat, Kansas City. The Miss Congeniality title was won by Miss Augustine.

Meir Praises Airline Captain

TEL AVIV (AP) — Premier Golda Meir kissed the captain of the Belgian airliner hijacked by Arab guerrillas and told him, "We love you."

Israeli officials gave a gala dinner Wednesday night for the crew of the Sabena 707 jet that was hijacked Monday. Mrs. Meir toasted the British pilot, Reginald Levy, and told him: "You are taking with you Israel's love and esteem and all of our love for you and the crew."

Levy said he should not be singled out because each crew member had "carried out his task with devotion and presence of mind."

Levy and 96 others were held at gunpoint for 21 hours Monday and Tuesday by four Arabs at Lod International Airport until they were rescued by Israeli soldiers disguised as mechanics. The Israeli paratroopers killed two of the hijackers and captured the other two wounding one of them.

Mistakes Costly To McGovern

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Tabulation mistakes in the Democratic presidential primary in Cuyahoga County "may have cost U.S. Sen. George McGovern as many as 16,000 votes," the Cleveland Plain Dealer reported today.

The newspaper said in a copy-right story that the number of votes was "enough to jeopardize U.S. Sen. Hubert Humphrey's unofficial statewide lead of 19,000."

The mistakes were found Wednesday, the Plain Dealer said, while its reporters were trying to determine how former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy could get more than 20,000 votes for alternates at-large and only 4,000 for delegates at-large.

Reporters examined summary sheets used by poll workers. "The sheets list the five presidential candidates' delegates in a horizontal row," the story said. "Ballots are counted and the totals are recorded on this sheet. Each candidate's delegate list on the sheet was perforated and when tallied could be separated."

"On the sheet, McCarthy's alternates are listed adjacent to McGovern's delegates," the story continued. "The arrangement presented a confusing situation for the counters who, reporters found, accidentally credited McCarthy alternates with votes that had been intended for McGovern delegates."

The Plain Dealer said the tabulation sheet used in Cuyahoga County apparently was not used statewide.

Louis Harris Survey

By LOUIS HARRIS

Sen. Edmund Muskie peaked a year ago in April when he led Richard Nixon by 47-39 per cent, but when he withdrew as an active candidate in the Presidential primaries exactly 12 months later, his standing with voters had receded to a point where he was trailing Nixon by a substantial 44-33 per cent.

The sharp decline in Muskie's standing in the polls can be traced to two separate but critical developments: 1.) By his dramatic efforts to open up a new era in U.S.-Communist bloc relations, President Nixon robbed Muskie of his former favored position among independents, suburban residents, higher-income, and college-educated voters; 2.) In his own campaigning, Muskie was not able to articulate the fundamental bread-and-butter issues against the Administration at a time when the public was still worried about unemployment and high prices.

As a consequence, Muskie failed in the primaries and can no longer claim that he would make the strongest race against President Nixon if nominated by his party's convention in July. Muskie's last remaining hope is that he might turn out to be a bridge if a deadlock developed between Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Sen. George McGovern. But without a more convincing run against the President than he now makes in the trial heats in the polls, Sen. Muskie stands the risk of being counted out even before the Democrats convene in Miami Beach.

Since last January when he was running dead even with Nixon, Sen. Muskie has dropped a full 9 points, although, ironically, the President has picked up only 2 points. The biggest gainer has been George Wallace, who has jumped from 11 to 15 per cent in this three-way matchup. At 33 per cent Muskie is lower than at any time since the Harris survey first listed him in a Presidential poll in May, 1969.

Sen. Muskie a year ago was the only Democrat to hold a decisive lead over President Nixon among the key college-educated and affluent voting segments who have grown from 11 to 20 per cent of the electorate in just four years. But in one year's time he has slipped 20 points with both groups. By the same token, President Nixon's positive rating among his key elite, independent voting group for his performance in "working for peace" has soared from 43 to 71 per cent. Sen. Muskie's appeal among the affluent finally dissolved with Nixon's trip to China and the announcement of his journey to Moscow.

At the same time, Sen. Muskie had also slipped among enrolled Democrats, particularly those in cities and in small towns. He did not seem to be able to connect with the bread-and-butter vote at precisely the time disenchantment with the Nixon Administration on this score was rising in 1972.

Russia Will Avoid Vietnam Showdown

Not since the Cuban missile crisis of 1962 has the U.S. faced such a potential confrontation with the Soviet Union as that created by President Nixon's order to mine the entrances to North Vietnam's harbors.

As of Wednesday, 36 foreign merchant ships remained in Haiphong harbor, almost half of them Russian. Other Soviet merchant ships were enroute to North Vietnam, but were reported to be changing course in face of the activation of the naval mines, which occurred early Thursday morning, U.S. time.

The prospect, then, is for many merchants ships that have brought armaments and other aid to North Vietnam to be bottled up inside enemy harbors, while others are unable to enter to unload their cargos.

Uppermost in everyone's mind, of course, is the question: What will Russia do?

The Russian navy could order a squadron of minesweepers to Vietnam to clear the fields, but this would take time. And even if the mines were swept, there would remain the problem of getting the merchant ships into enemy harbors in face of the United States' announced determination to "not allow supplies to reach the shore."

From this it can be presumed that the U.S. Navy is prepared to use air and surface units to destroy the merchant ships that might attempt to run into North Vietnam.

Is Russia prepared to pay this price? Based on past experience and the Soviet Union's well-known respect for military power, we think not.

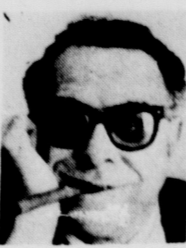

The fact is that the U.S. is holding the top cards in terms of naval strength on the spot. Already assembled, or soon to be, is a task force of five aircraft carriers, four cruisers and some 30 destroyers as well as fast coastal gunboats. Russia cannot begin to meet this challenge, especially the overwhelming air power.

President Nixon has taken a carefully calculated risk to choke off Hanoi's war materials. If it comes down to an eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation with the Soviets, they will be the first to blink.

M'Govern Just Not Funny

WASHINGTON — An ad hoc committee of humor writers and political cartoonists held an emergency meeting last weekend in Washington to see what they could do about Sen. George McGovern, who suddenly has become a viable presidential candidate.

Buchwald

and drawings.

"It's impossible," a humor writer said. "McGovern has been running for a year now, and there is not one thing humorous about him."

"May I remind you," another cartoonist said, "that you said the same thing about Nixon in 1968."

"Nixon's different," the first cartoonist said. "You can at least draw his nose. 'You can't even make a sketch of McGovern. He looks like everyone's high school chemistry teacher. If I don't put his name on the seat of his pants, no one knows who the heck he is.'"

A humor columnist said, "It's worse when you're trying to WRITE something funny about him. Has anyone managed to write anything funny about McGovern?"

There was dead silence in the room. "How can you write something funny about a man who comes from South Dakota?" a writer asked defensively.

The chairman said, "Well at least we're in agreement that McGovern isn't NATURALLY funny. The next question is how do we make him funny?"

There was dead silence in the room.

The chairman said, "Gentlemen, if by some chance McGovern were elected President of the United States, our jobs would be at stake. We would have to make fun of him for four years."

"I can't do it," a cartoonist cried. "I'd rather do commercials for American Airlines."

"Better Wallace than McGovern!" a gag writer yelled.

"You mean you'd rather have George Wallace as President of the United States than George McGovern?"

"We have to think of ourselves," the gag writer protested. "We know all of us could live with Wallace!"

"Huzzah! Huzzah!" the crowd shouted.

"Even Humphrey would provide us with more material than McGovern!" A cartoonist yelled. "I've got a lot of reject cartoons left over on him."

"You're avoiding the issue," the chairman warned. "This meeting was called to decide what to do about McGovern. A few months ago the chance of his being President was out of the question. But now we may have to live with him, and we have to decide how we can do it. What I suggest we do right now is test ourselves. The writers start writing funny gags about McGovern, and the cartoonists start drawing funny pictures of him. Then we'll exchange the ideas. You've got 30 minutes to produce something."

At the end of 30 minutes, the chairman called the meeting to order. "What have we got?"

The cartoonists held blank sketch pads.

"Cripes!" the chairman said. "What about the writers?"

"I have one," said one of the country's leading satirists. "Why does McGovern wear red suspenders?"

"To hold up his pants?" the chairman asked.

"You were peeking," the satirist said peevishly.

Merry-Go-Round

Tips To Discover FBI's Secret Files

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Patrick Gray III got off to an unconvincing start as the new boss of the FBI by pleading with newsmen: "None of you guys are going to believe this — and I don't know how to make you believe it — but there are no dossiers or secret files."

We will be happy to tell poor Pat, since he's new around the FBI, where some of the secret files are stashed.

As a starter, he might ask to see the Jane Fonda file, No. 100-459279. The FBI apparently considers the tiny, if sometimes turbulent, Miss Fonda a menace to the nation.

She recently won the Academy Award as Hollywood's best actress. But her most faithful fans are G-men, who monitor her performances around the world and submit detailed reports on her antiwar routines.

The Fonda file is stuffed with reports marked "Confidential" and "Secret." One entry, dated April 30, 1971, is stamped "Top Secret — No Foreign Dissemination — No Dissemination abroad."

This hush-hush document alleges darkly: "Between November 1970 and April 1971, Fonda toured college campuses across the country making antiwar speeches. A source advised (the FBI) the North Vietnamese Embassy in Moscow bought a plane ticket for Fonda to travel from the United States to Moscow and Hanoi via Paris on 3-17-71, though the trip was discontinued as all visas to North Vietnam were later cancelled."

By perusing the secret FBI files, Pat Gray can also find out who's who and what's new in the black community. There's hardly an important black leader who doesn't rate a full FBI file.

For example, Gray can learn from reading the Coretta King file, No. 100-6351, that the martyred Martin Luther King's widow has hired the Byron Detective agency to "maintain security" at her Atlanta home. This tidbit is stamped merely "Confidential," although there's a lot of equally irrelevant information labeled "Secret."

Or Gray may be interested to discover from a "Secret" entry in the Ralph Abernathy file, No. 100-442706, that King's successor at the Southern Christian Leadership Conference was "considering resigning as President, because of lack of cooperation from officers."

Even one of President Nixon's stalwart black supporters, Floyd McKissick, is kept under regular FBI surveillance. His file, No. 100-446386, contains a full background report on his activities labeled "Secret — No Foreign Dissemination."

Gray can also keep up with the world travels of James Baldwin, the famous black novelist, by reading file No. 62-108763. An entry, dated Dec. 23, 1969, and marked "Secret — No Foreign Dissemination," confides:

"NY T-1, another government agency which conducts intelligence investigations, advised on July 31, 1969, that James Baldwin arrived at Istanbul, Turkey, from Athens, Greece, via Air France on July 13, 1969."

There followed excerpts from the August 18, 1969, edition of the Turkish newspaper "Milliyet," also stamped a deep, dark "Secret."

Or Gray can read all about the personal affairs of Harry Belafonte, the talented black actor, by snooping through file No. 100-394716. A "Secret" background report starts off with information that the "subject's true name is Harold George Belafonte."

The new FBI chief will find all sorts of titillating tidbits in the files of such movie stars as Marlon Brando, Paul Newman, Rock Hudson, Tony Randall, Zero Mostel and others. None of them are accused of any crimes or suspected subversion. But the FBI keeps files on them anyhow.

Or, if Gray is a football fan, he can glean some fascinating facts from the FBI files on the likes of Joe Namath and Lance Rentzel.

For example, the FBI lists Namath under No. 505524F. His file declares: "Captioned individual, a member of the New York Jets of the American Football League, has never been the subject of an FBI investigation."

Yet the FBI has kept a faithful account of such miscellany as the report "from a reliable source that he frequents The Pussycat Bar in New York City."

Above all, newsmen should be skeptical — as Gray suggested they would be — that "there are no dossiers or secret files."

One dogged investigative reporter, I. F. Stone, file No. 100-37078, is checked out regularly by the FBI. A typical entry, dated March 17, 1967, and stamped "Confidential," reports:

"During 1966, subject spoke at several anti-Vietnam affairs. In his talks he was critical of the United States handling and participation in the Vietnam War."

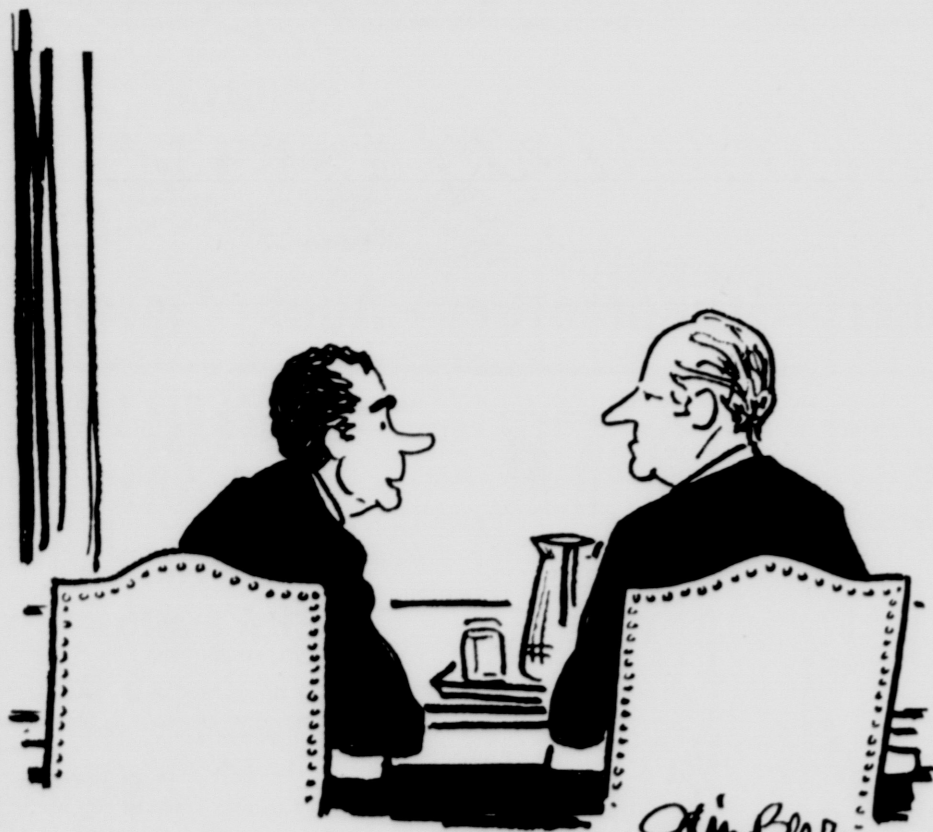

"In February, 1966, subject observed to meet a Second Secretary (press) of the Embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Washington, D.C., at a Washington, D.C. restaurant."

Throughout most FBI files is scattered gossip about the sex lives of the subjects, indicating that the FBI spends considerable time snooping into the bedrooms of prominent people.

If Pat Gray still doubts that the FBI keeps secret files, we will be happy to show him some xeroxed copies.

Blood Drive Success Here

The May 5 community blood drawing was very successful, and we thank you for your support and interest. Jim Hurst, Dr. John Owens, Barbara Rampone of Bothwell Memorial Hospital, and the 218 people who either shared their blood, or attempted to do so, deserve much praise. (174 units were donated, 44 others attempted to give, but were disqualified).

We service 53 hospitals as you know, and we have the lowest wastage percentage in the United States, so blood we draw is always needed. But there ARE times when we feel more desperate than other times, and as it happened this two-week period in which Sedalia's drawing fell was one of those times. We really needed the blood and could have hugged the whole town if we could have done so! Many, many thanks to all those involved!

Hopefully, the spirit to share will continue. We will be back November 3, with more nurses and stay longer in an attempt to provide more efficient service.

A Conservative View

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Industrial safety is one of those things, politically speaking, that no prudent politician can oppose and every prudent politician must support. It stands in a class with clean air, clean water, pure food, and non-flammable nighties for little girls.

Kilpatrick

Thus it was, 17 months ago, that the Senate voted 83-3 and the House 309-60 for the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970. The act went into effect April 28, 1971. American employers and employees now have been struggling with its provisions for a little more than a year. It will be another year before even tentative conclusions can be drawn on the law's effectiveness.

Meanwhile, the verdict seems to be mixed. There is some reason to believe that the law's impact is like the little boy's book report on a 600-page volume dealing with penguins: "This book told me more about penguins than I really wanted to know." With its sweeping and detailed regulations, the act of 1970 may have imposed upon industry more safety than really is required.

One hesitates to venture such a judgment. The figures (excluding mining casualties, which are compiled separately and are covered by another law) offer a sobering picture of conditions in need of correction: In 1970, some 14,500 persons died and 2.2 million suffered disabling injuries in industrial accidents. An estimated 250 million man-days of work were lost. Beyond dispute, many employers have been negligent, and many workers have been careless. By and large, safety laws of the individual states appear not have been doing an effective job.

Granted all that, an impression is growing that the 1970 act is developing, just as its critics have protested all along, into a lawyer's dream and an engineer's nightmare. In their eager-beaver zeal to make an impressive splash, safety inspectors from the Department of Labor have made more than 22,000 inspections in their first nine months of enforcement. They have recommended penalties in a startling 40 per cent of their investigations — penalties adding up to nearly $1.5 million in fines.

More Safety Than We Really Need?

If the penalties were imposed only for serious infractions of safety rules, employer protests would have a hollow ring. But in thousands of instances, it appears, elaborate citations are drawn up for the most trivial offenses: An electric extension cord is not precisely secure, a hardhat is not precisely the approved weight, a toilet seat is not exactly so many inches off the floor, an appropriate receptacle has not been provided for used paper cups at the water container.

Employers complain that the system leaves them virtually at the mercy of two groups — their own workers, and the Labor Department inspectors. Under the law, the burden of maintaining safe conditions falls entirely upon management, if an inspector finds a laborer bareheaded, when he should be wearing a hardhat, the employer is penalized — even though he may have pleaded repeatedly with his workers to observe the rule. In most instances, the recommended fines are more in the nature of harassment than punishment — $25 to $100; it costs an employer less to pay them than to fight them.

Small employers are protesting bitterly, with apparent justice, at the heavy burden of record-keeping demanded by the act.

Statistics to the bureaucrat are like cud to the cow. It is understandable that the Department of Labor wants to feed its computers all kinds of lovely figures. But the forms are demanding; the records are tedious; and compliance takes endless time.

Admittedly, accidents cost money, but so does safety. Last week the U.S. Chamber of Commerce heard from a manufacturer of earth-moving machines. Between 1969 and 1975, some 350,000 such machines will have been built. Under the law, each must carry $2,000 in new roll-over protection. That represents an added cost of $700 million which must be recaptured somehow.

Employers undeniably have an obligation to provide safe and sanitary conditions for their workers. Who could quarrel with that? But some noise, and some dust, and some hazards are inescapably part of the world of manufacturing and building. If the administrators of the act get excessively finicky, they will succeed only in driving costs up, and cooperation down.

Life on Death Row Remains Day-to-Day Monotony of Dull Prison Walls

Editor's Note: What is life like for the men in death row as they wait for the U.S. Supreme Court to decide whether states can execute prisoners. Tulsa Tribune Managing Editor Jenk Jones Jr. talked to four of the death row inmates at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary. Here are some of their comments.

By JENK JONES JR.
Tulsa Tribune
For The Associated Press

MCALISTER, Okla. (AP) — Their wants at first blush appear simple.

The feel of warm sunlight upon pale skin, the caress of a breeze hurrying who knows where, the sight of the Oklahoma sky's blue vault — down to the point where the high white walls intercept it.

Ultimately, life itself. But for the present, life must be day-to-day, a monotonous round of sameness in meals, sameness in talk, sameness in games and diversions.

These men are the damned among the damned, those prisoners at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary who are condemned to die. Their address: Death Row.

Michael J. "Little Mike" Gibson, sentenced for the slaying of a Midwest City couple, describes it:

"Prison is a world outside a world, and death row a world outside that world."

Gibson, one of four death row inmates convicted of murder who talked to the Tulsa Tribune Tuesday, was asked how one "survives" in such a gloomy situation.

"Make do, man, that's all there is to it. It's a limbo."

Whether there will be a death row next year — or even next week — is questionable. The U.S. Supreme Court is wrestling with the issue of whether capital punishment is constitutional.

"I don't know if death itself is inhumane, but the waiting is what's inhumane," says 23-year-old Felix Fesmire Jr., convicted of slaying his father, brother and a friend in Roger Mills County.

Gibson says, "I'd rather they rule for capital punishment than not rule at all. I've already spent three years (on the row); I'd hate the thought of spending another three years in a limbo, then die after all."

Michael Wayne "Big Mike" Watts, 23, from Oklahoma County, echoed: "If they're going to kill us, I wish they'd go ahead and do it. If not, I wish they'd let us off."

Even if the death penalty is upheld, many of the 14 men on death row (plus one in the prison hospital and another in a mental institution who are under death sentences) might have their sentences commuted to life in prison.

Calvin Patrick, 45, is twice the age of the others interviewed. He has been on death row for more than a year, convicted in Oklahoma County of slaying two step-daughters, a crime he says he didn't commit.

"Only a fool wants to die," Patrick remarks. "But rather than hang on and suffer the rest of my life, they'd be doing me a favor — if they're not just going ahead and kill me."

With a grin, the crewcut, bespectacled Gibson opposes the death penalty. "All my thoughts are biased; it's sort of a conflict of interests."

Watts "can't say" whether capital punishment is justified. But he dislikes the electric chair.

"I'd rather be shot — it's a lot cleaner," he said. "A man thinks about it as little as possible, but it's not really a big bother to think about," Watts added.

Fesmire, with more than four years on the row, holds seniority.

"When I first came down to death row talk of the chair was taboo. Now the guys are a little more relaxed," he said.

There is reason for the latter. Oklahoma has executed 83 men since 1915 but none since August 1966.

The men seem to have come to psychological grips with the ominous clouds that threaten their existence. But the pricy heat of how they analyze death row conditions gets to them.

No exercise, no fresh air, no sunshine, too few showers, poor food — these are their claims.

"Animals at the zoo are treated better than we are," Watts contends. "At least monkeys get fresh air and sunshine without breathing the same breath with the guy next door."

Acting Warden Park Anderson says he's sympathetic to the complaints about no exercise or time outdoors.

Anderson says he hopes to build a new death row facility — if there is future need of one — outside the main grouping of cellblocks, and include an exercise yard for the condemned. But he contends he currently does not have the manpower to watch them in the main "yard" and keep them separated from other prisoners.

Even taking the men for showers puts a strain on his security staff, he said. Since a stabbing two years ago, extra officers are used to move the men.

The cells are side-by-side. To play chess or checkers, as many do, requires calling out the moves to a man who can't see your board.

Sometimes a "runner," another inmate whose job is running errands for the nonmobile death rowers, will help by moving the pieces in the narrow corridor outside the cells, thus enabling the players to visually follow the action.

Televisions are placed in the corridor, or "run," with three cells sharing each TV.

Beyond games and television, there are only two other prime diversions: talking and reading.

Reading is no cure-all, especially since the prison library runs heavily to westerns and science fiction. Law books and college correspondence courses are barred and material from the outside is closely screened.

Patrick claims food is often served from unclean containers, and the only utensil — a plastic spoon — is inadequate for cutting meat.

Prison guards drew the fire of some of the men. Patrick says, "You've really got some pitiful cases" at McAlester.

It is a place for philosophies and fears.

Perhaps Gibson, a youngster still groping for "what makes me tick," sums the situation best for all the condemned:

"Everybody's got to go sometime. I just wish I could go out with a little more class."

Old Radio Shows Aired

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Tom W. Reed of Spokane has parlayed a lifetime goal to be a radio actor and a current national fad for nostalgia into a successful series of recreated oldtime broadcasts.

Reed has packaged old Jack Benny, Amos and Andy and Suspense Theater broadcasts and created his own series called Theater of the Mind. Both have met with good reception from radio station owners and nostalgia-minded individuals. He says about 15 stations in California, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming are running the series.

"By the time I was ready to enter radio drama, the field was on the way out," he said.

"TV was on the increase and was here to stay."

A return of old movies and a resurrection of music and styles from the 1930s and '40s found Reed creating a series on old broadcasts and offering them to radio stations throughout the west.

"The reaction was so great from the public, stations wanted more when the series was over," he said, "so we created the Theater of the Mind. The demand has been so great we can't keep up with it."

Reed said he receives a large number of requests from individuals wanting to get the old broadcasts for home use, especially for tape recorders.

S-C Hangs On for Win

Smith-Cotton advanced to today's district finals with a hard-earned, 4-1 decision over Sweet Springs in the Missouri State High School Activities Association's sub-district baseball finals, Wednesday, in Liberty Park Stadium.

"They're a tough team," said S-C coach "Skip" Schulz after the Wednesday victory. "We may have been a little lucky ... they're tough."

The Tigers were never behind in the contest, but they almost saw their three-run lead dwindle in the bottom of the seventh.

Taking a 4-1 margin into the home half of the last frame (Sweet Springs won the toss and was the home team), Tigers' starter Paul Kostopolus had to be lifted after two runners got on with one out.

Schulz brought Ralph Perri in from his regular second base slot, and he put out the fire. But a clutch fielders choice play with the bases loaded and a fine catch by right fielder Pete Kostopolus were the real keys that kept the Tigers alive in the MSHSAA playoffs.

Paul Kostopolus, who got credit for his seventh win of the season, struck out Kim Heerman to open the bottom of the seventh.

But left fielder Rick Arnold picked up the Greyhounds' second and final hit of the game by dumping a single into right field.

Kostopolus then walked pinch hitter Steve Krause. In the meantime, Arnold had made it to second base on probably the strangest steal of the season.

With the count two balls and no strikes, Kostopolus winged another called ball by plate umpire Bobby Brown. Krause promptly threw his bat on the ground and trotted toward first base. Arnold moved into second without a throw. Brown called time, and motioned Krause back to the plate to complete his time at bat. But Arnold was already safe at second.

Kostopolus' next pitch to Krause was another ball, putting runners on first and second and brought up the leadoff batter, Jerry Reid. Schulz countered with Perri, but he walked Reid loading the bases.

Perri then pulled off the key play of the game as he fielded a Harlan Reid bunt and tossed to catcher Steve Herzberg. Herzberg stepped on the plate, forcing Arnold.

Dick Vogt came to the plate with the bases still loaded. He worked the count to two and one before lofting a fly ball to right field that Pete Kostopolus squeezed for the final out of the game, giving the Tigers the win.

Smith-Cotton drew first blood in the game as Perri walked to open the contest. He stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. Doug Maple brought him home with a sacrifice fly.

The next S-C run crossed the plate in the third with two out. After Sweet Springs' righthander Ted Moore struck out the leadoff batter, Maple, and got Derrick Crank on a ground out to second, Herzberg reached first on a fielding error by the shortstop. Herzberg came home on back-to-back singles by the Kostopolus twins.

The other two Tiger runs scored in the sixth. Moore walked the bases loaded by issuing free passes to Jim Sanders, McRoy and Kim Anderson. Perri drove in the third run of the game by dumping a single into right field that sent Sanders home. McRoy crossed the plate with Maple at bat as Moore let go with a wild pitch.

That was the extent of the Smith-Cotton offense, as Maple struck out and Crank popped to third.

The lone Greyhound run came home in the third. Carl Colson struck out to open the inning, but Kostopolus walked Jerry Reid, the next batter. An error on third baseman McRoy when he threw low to Anderson at first after fielding a ground ball off the bat of Harlan Reid, left runners safe at first and third. Jerry Reid scored on a sacrifice bunt by Vogt.

Sweet Springs had their first threat of the game in the second inning, but Kostopolus got Arnold on a ground ball for the third out, stranding runners at first and third.

In gaining his seventh win of the season, Kostopolus struckout eight and walked five.

The Tigers were slated to take on Fatima of Westphalia, Mo., in the district finals Thursday afternoon in Liberty Park. Westphalia eliminated Columbia Hickman in their sub-district championship contest, 1-0, last week.

Fatima pitcher Don Loethen, who tossed a one-hit shutout against the Kewpies in eliminating them from the MSHSAA competition, and S-C's Mike Arnold were scheduled to be on the mound Thursday afternoon.

Perry Keeps KC Royal Bats Quiet

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Veteran pitcher Gaylord Perry is one of the main reasons the Cleveland Indians are off to their best start in seven years and stand alone today in first place in the American League East.

Perry tossed a five-hitter in Wednesday's 7-2 Tribe triumph over the Kansas City Royals.

The youthful Indian squad is bubbling over with the excitement brought on by four straight victories and winning eight in the last nine games.

In that span, Indian pitchers have surrendered just 12 runs for an earned run average of 1.33.

Cleveland's record is 12-7, which is a half-game better than both Detroit and Baltimore.

Perry, who's won his last three starts to up his record to 5-2 and reduce his ERA to 2.02, was masterful the first six frames allowing just one hit.

He also helped himself at the plate, lashing an RBI single in the sixth after two-run line single to right by Frank Duffy built the Indians lead to 6-0. It was Perry's second single of the game and came after he had struck out in 11 of his 16 previous at-bats this season.

Alex Johnson provided the impetus for the victory with a three-run homer in the third.

Johnson now leads Cleveland with three homers, 12 RBI and has a batting average of .297.

Kansas City scored its runs in the seventh on a bloop double by Steve Hovley and an opposite field single by Richie Scheinblum, and a single by Ed Kirkpatrick and a double by Fred Patek in the eighth.

Hamm's, O'Connors Win Tourney Games

KINGSVILLE — Houstonia Hamm's and Mike O'Connor Motors gained opening-round victories in Wednesday night action in the Stahl's Invitational Softball Tournament.

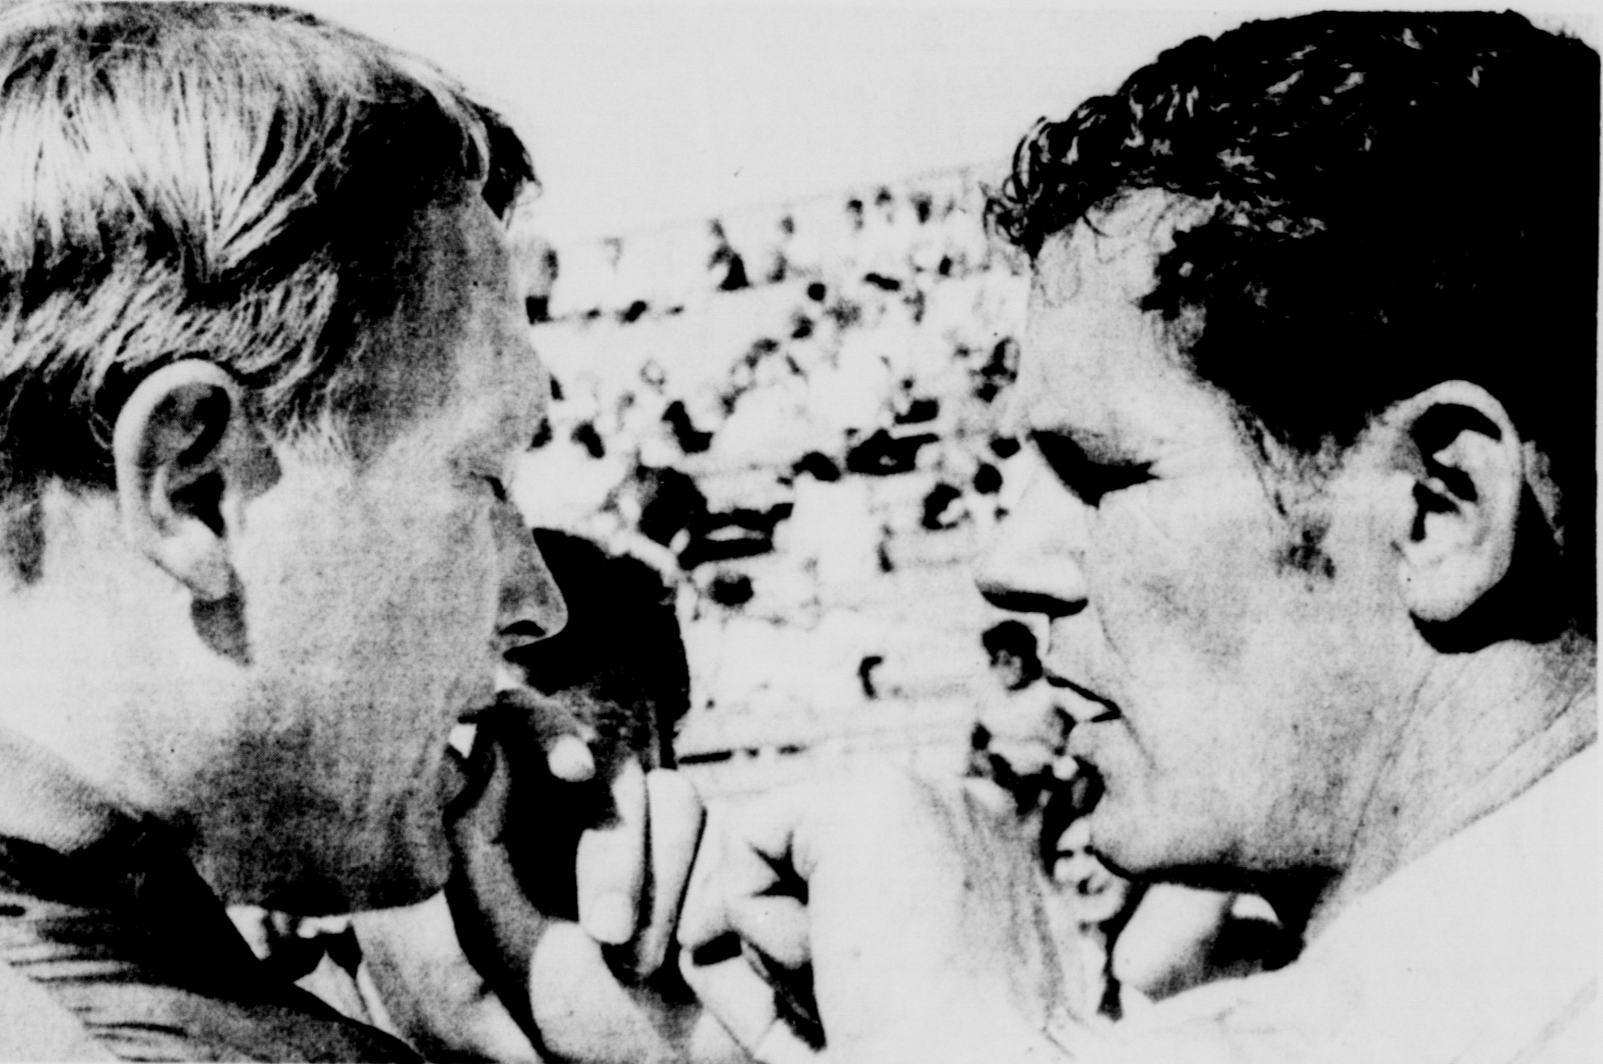

Houstonia topped Third National Bank of Clinton, 4-1, behind the two-hit performance of Bob Sevier.

O'Connor's whipped the Warrensburg entry, Harmon Electric, 9-1. John Fiene was the winner in that contest.

Tom Hunter smacked a home run, while Bill Dey added two triples and Vern Harvey went two-for three for O'Connor Motors.

Hamm's and O'Connors clash Friday night in an upper-bracket semifinal game at 7 p.m.

Ditzfeld Transfer of Sedalia is scheduled to play host to Stahl's tonight at 9 p.m.

Owner, Driver Talk Speed

Dan Gurney, left, builder of the Eagle racer, talks with his driver Bobby Unser, after Unser was timed at 194.7 mph in a practice run at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, Wednesday. It was the fastest lap ever around the two and one-half mile course. The run made Unser, the 1968 Indy 500 winner, a favorite to win the pole position. Qualifications open Saturday.

(UPI)

Nearing 200 mph

Bobby U. Goes 194-plus

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — How does a 200 mile per hour lap at Indianapolis strike you? Impossible?

"It can be done," says Bobby Unser. "Not this year, probably, but eventually and soon. As a matter of fact, I don't know yet how fast my car can run. But I'm working up to finding out."

Unser, the 38-year-old 1968 Indianapolis 500 winner from Albuquerque, N.M., shocked the old-line Indy veterans to their heels Wednesday when he whipped Dan Gurney's All-American Racers Eagle around at an unofficial 194.721 m.p.h., 14 miles per hour faster than the track record.

He earlier recorded three laps in a row in excess of 191 m.p.h., then made a few adjustments and sipped a soft drink before going back out for one lap at 192.318.

He waited until 5:33 p.m. to jingle the timing clocks with his masterpiece.

"We have been working up gradually," Unser said. "We haven't been trying to set the woods on fire, just work hard, drive hard, and look ahead of the race. But I guess you could say now I'm the one the others will have to beat for the pole position."

Unser, who won the national driving title the same year he captured Indy, says the higher speeds this year are due to quicker times through the Speedway's short chutes, rather than blitzing the long straightaways as has been the case in previous years.

Already considered by most as the favorite to win the No. 1 starting spot in first-round qualifying Saturday, Unser now admits the other drivers have some catching up to do. Nonetheless, several other drivers were beginning to find the range, and by Wednesday's track closing, 16 drivers had turned unofficial laps at 180 or better.

Among them were the Parnelli Jones drivers, Al Unser, Mario Andretti and Joe Leonard; three-time winner A.J. Foyt, and darkhorses Jim Malloy and Gordon Johncock.

Bobby Unser's chief antagonist in the raging speed war has been 28-year-old Gary Bettenhausen, who recorded the first 191-plus lap at the Speedway Sunday.

Peter Revson, who with Johncock is assigned to the British-based McLaren organization, holds the Speedway's official one-lap record of 179.354 m.p.h. and the four-lap mark of 178.696. Revson appeared to be getting the kinks out of his new car and rode around Wednesday at 189.394. He came away smiling.

'Weak' Hitters Sink Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lee May continued to hit a ton, but two skinny .143 hitters stole the show Wednesday night for Houston's National League West leaders.

While May pounded four hits and totaled three RBI, Roger Metzger and seldom-used Jimmy Stewart ganged up on the St. Louis Cardinals 10-7 in a six-run eighth.

Metzger, whose 11 hits in 19 previous games included 10 singles, clubbed a home run—his first in the majors—leading off the uprising.

Two outs, three runs and eight batters later Stewart, a switch-hitter, poled a triple off left-hander Joe Grzenda to decide the slugfest.

"I'm sure it would have to shock anybody," the pencil-thin

Metzger, a 165-pound shortstop, said in respect to his drive off Bob Gibson, who sailed into the eighth inning with a 7-3 lead.

"I don't think he got the pitch exactly where he wanted it in that it was toward the inside of the plate and it was a fast ball. "I just happened to be looking for a fast ball," Metzger added, "but I wasn't really thinking it would go out even though I knew I hit it hard. To say I was surprised would be an understatement."

Gibson, evidently in shock, then served line drive singles to Cesar Cedeño and Jim Wynn before Al Santorini came on for more rough treatment.

May singled home Cedeño and Bob Watson delivered his second sacrifice fly of the evening to make the score 7-6 before Doug Radar popped out and Tommy Helms, hitting 187, singled to tie.

Santorini (2-3) then walked John Edwards intentionally, bringing in Grzenda to face Stewart, who was pinch-hitting.

"It was a good pitch I hit," said Stewart, who in seven previous at-bats owned only a single. "It was a slider."

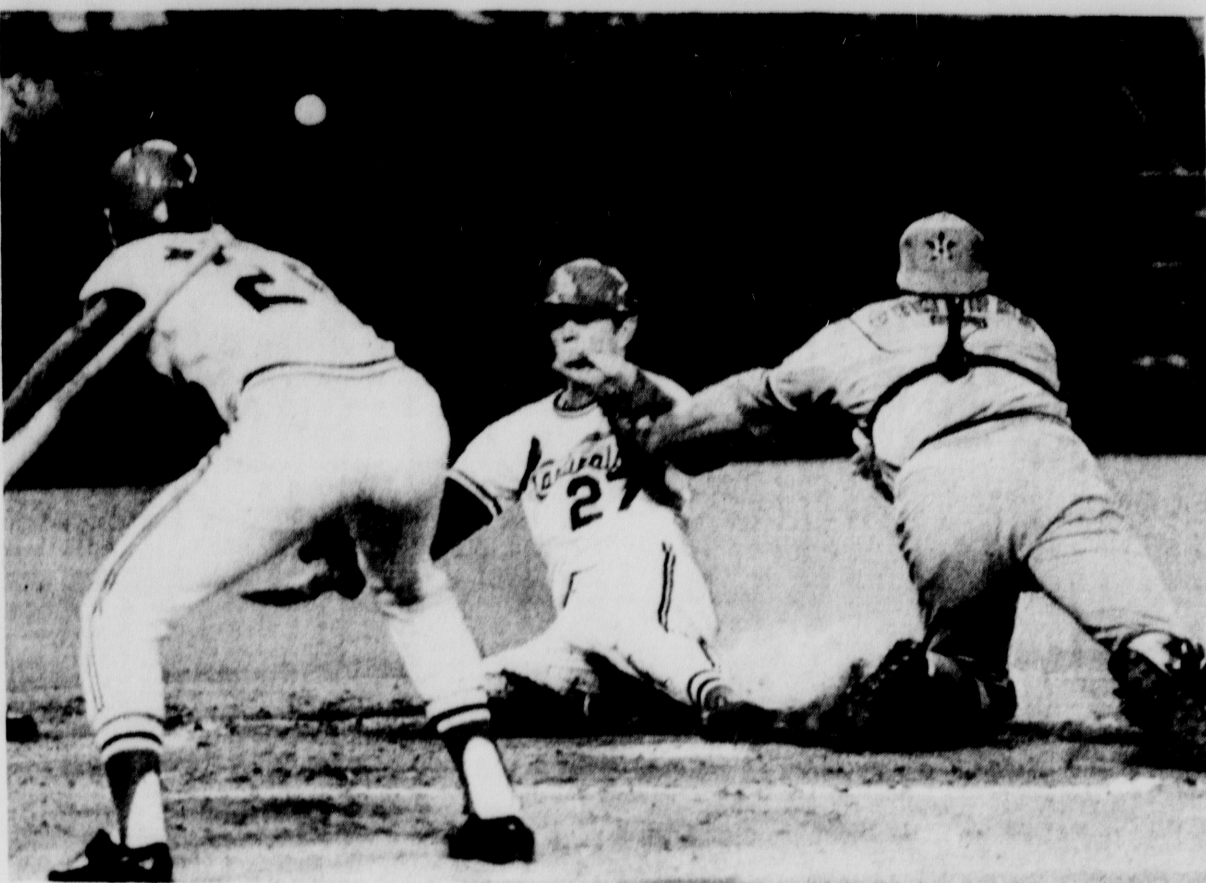

The muscular May, who had tripped in the sixth and also singled home a run in the first, homered in the ninth off Moe Drabowsky to cap a late show overcoming early Cardinal fire-works.

Ted Simmons, battling out of a mild slump, had highlighted a St. Louis burst for five runs in the third with his first major league grand slam and the Redbirds added two in the seventh.

The seventh, as it turned out, also featured a double play seldom seen but vital to Houston's hopes for a comeback, however.

May took Ed Crosby's hard bouncer in front of first with the bases loaded and one out and fired home to force Joe Torre. Catcher Edwards had no chance to Crosby but relayed to third forcing Simmons.

"I didn't think we had a chance, but it was big," the alert Radar revealed. "I wasn't expecting him to throw and I don't think he was expecting me to be there."

Maxvill Nests One for Cards

St. Louis' Dal Maxvill (27) scores as the ball bounces away from Houston catcher John Edwards in the third inning of the Cards-Astros' game, Wednesday night, in St. Louis. Maxvill scored from second on a single to right by Jose Cruz. Astros' right fielder Jim Wynn made the throw to the plate. On deck batter Luis Melendez ducks to watch the action. Houston won the contest, 10-7.

Wildcats Top Jayvees Twice

The Wildcats notched a 14-4 decision in the fourth inning of the initial game by scoring five runs in the top of the fourth that helped Mark Hinnah gain the win.

Slater broke open a tight contest in the fourth inning of the first game by scoring five runs in the top of the fourth that helped Mark Hinnah gain the win.

Both teams scored lone runs in the first and third, but the five-run uprising, along with a two-run fifth and a four-run sixth, was all the Wildcats needed.

Jim Vansell, the S-C starter, was charged with the loss. Mark Stockstill hit a two-run homer in the fifth. He tallied three rbi in the contest.

Slater did their damage in the first two innings of the second contest, chasing in three in the opening inning and adding the rest in the second.

Greg Boehne accounted for both the Tigers runs in the third inning on a homer with one man aboard. The other S-C tally came on another homer, that one was a solo blast by losing pitcher Steve Bartlett.

Tom Sandwith was the winning pitcher.

Win Tonight Would Give Bruins Title

NEW YORK (AP) — The Boston Bruins, still thirsting for the bubbly stuff and hungry for dollars, hope to do another reversal of form and wrap up the Stanley Cup tonight against the proud New York Rangers.

The Bruins were a tense, determined group as they invaded New York for the sixth game of the National Hockey League's best-of-seven series for the sport's most coveted prize.

The Bruins, many of whom call New York's Madison Square Garden "the zoo" because of boisterous and overzealous fans who often litter the ice with debris, had their scheduled celebration party wrecked by a 3-2 loss to the Rangers in Boston Tuesday night.

They were in no mood for fun and jokes during a flight from Boston and then a bus ride for seclusion in a hotel outside "Fun City" before the important, nationally televised (CBSTV, 8:30 p.m., EDT) meeting with the Rangers.

The hard-hitting Bruins lost a chance to clinch the championship in the fifth game, blowing a 2-1 lead as the Rangers' Bobby Rousseau scored a pair of goals in the third period.

"As far as I'm concerned, the Rangers lulled us to sleep," Coach Tom Johnson said. "We didn't play our usual aggressive game, and it was costly. Injuries? How could we have any? We didn't hit anybody all night. We've got to become aggressive again."

S-M Wins Twinbill From Cole Camp

COLE CAMP — The S-M softball team topped Cole Camp in doubleheader action here Wednesday night.

Paul Stoehr and Jim Steele were the winning pitchers.

Stoehr struck out nine and helped his cause with a three-run homer in the fifth that guided S-M to a 7-0 win in the opener. Melvin Garrett went three-for-four and stole five bases, while Steele picked up a pair of hits.

Garrett had five more stolen bases in the second game and turned in another three-for-four performance; J. R. Garrett had three hits in as many trips, as S-M captured a 14-7 win.

S-M tangles with LaMonte in Tri-County Softball League action.

Brasher Resigns Baseball Position

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State University baseball Coach Bob Brasher has announced his resignation effective June 1.

Brasher, 39, said he will devote full time to his instructional baseball school in Missouri and work in professional baseball in the off-season.

Brasher had seven winning seasons at K-State. Only once did his teams fall below the 500 mark. Nineteen of his players have gone into professional ball.

Before becoming the Wildcats coach, he coached at Lamar, Colo., Junior College and Central Missouri State.

Pop Warner Junior League football teams are sponsored by many organizations, including the Salvation Army, YMCA, Boys' Clubs of America and the Police Athletic League.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays came back to New York today, joining the New York Mets in a trade that sent young minor league pitcher Charlie Williams and an undisclosed amount of cash to the San Francisco Giants.

Before this, Blue threatened to leave baseball, and took an executive job for three weeks with a bathroom fixtures firm. Cobb, according to history, made no such threats. (However, teammate Sam Crawford, also an early holdout that spring, threatened to become a slot-machine salesman.)

The Tigers, sixth in 1912, finished sixth again in 1913. Cobb led the American League in hitting again, but dropped to a dismal .390.

In 1971, the A's won the American League West Division championship and Blue won 24 games.

Stay tuned, history fans.

Soccer Billikens Leave for Tour

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Three games with Dutch soccer clubs are scheduled next week as the St. Louis University soccer team begins an eight-day tour of Holland.

The Billikens will meet the Amsterdam Ajax Youth Club May 16, the Rotterdam Feyenoor Youth Club May 18 and the Holland all-star club May 20.

The Bills will travel as a club team, since the games are outside the normal NCAA soccer season. St. Louis U. was runner-up in last year's NCAA tournament.

The club leaves Sunday and is scheduled to return home May 22.

Kehoe Named As Coach For U.S. Soccer Team

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Kehoe, a well-known amateur soccer player in the St. Louis area and former coach of the St. Louis Soccer Stars, will coach the 1974 U.S. World Cup soccer team, the U.S. Soccer Football Association said Wednesday.

Kehoe was the playing captain of the 1965 World Cup team and coached the Stars in 1969 and 1970. Kehoe, 43, is a student at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

He said his first job with the World Cup team, composed of amateurs and professionals, will be to help assemble players in time for trial games in September against Mexico and Canada.

"To say that I'm thrilled is putting it mildly. This is one of the greatest honors to be gained by anyone connected with soccer," said Kehoe.

Emprise has stocks in race tracks throughout the United States. One of its major subsidiaries, Sportservice, Inc., holds food and beverage concessions at a large number of racetracks and stadiums.

Different, But Not Too Much

Cobb, Blue: A Tale of Two Holdouts

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Burpee's seed catalogue was a hot seller in the spring of 1913 and you could buy a Jackson touring automobile ("no hill too steep, no sand too deep"), complete with nickel trimming and, get this!, a self-starter, for $1,500.

Woodrow Wilson had just moved bag and baggage into the White House and the Prohibition Party was bubbling with enthusiasm.

It was nearly 60 years ago, a whole different era. Or was it?

The big baseball news was that Ty Cobb was a holdout. The circumstances engulfing his salary battle with Detroit Tiger owner Frank Navin had an uncommon likeness to the spring's dispute between Vida Blue and Oakland A's owner Charlie O. Finley.

Because of his great season in 1912, when he compiled a .410 batting average, Cobb plumped for a hardy raise, from $9,000 a year to $15,000. Blue, after a sensational pitching season in 1971, wanted a chunky salary hike. He had been making $25 less than Cobb's dream salary, and wanted $92,500.

Finley balked. "Blue will play for what I want to pay him or he won't play professional baseball," said Finley.

Navin balked. "You will play for Detroit or you won't play for anybody and you will take what I offer," said Navin, as quoted in Harold Seymour's history, "Baseball: The Golden Age."

Cobb had no place else to play, what with the restrictive reserve clause binding him for eternity to the Tigers.

Same with Blue. But Blue thought he'd use the Japanese baseball league as leverage, until he discovered that there was in fact an international cartel. And Japan had an unwritten agreement with organized baseball in the United States not to raid or entice American players to the land of cherry blossoms.

Sen. Hoke Smith of Georgia, Cobb's home state, asked Cobb for a copy of his contract, and said he would look into anti-trust possibilities.

Blue didn't have to go that far. Curt Flood had preceded him in that area.

Cobb was suspended by Navin for a month.

Finley placed Blue on the "restricted list," which meant that Blue could not play for the A's for a month, roughly equivalent to a suspension.

Navin claimed that Cobb's salary demands would "bankrupt me." However, he had added two thousand seats in the past year, to create a seating capacity of 13,000 in Navin Stadium. And he was planning to construct another 10,000 seats. Business couldn't have been all that bad.

Finley was cashing in mightily on Blue, who had become one of baseball's best drawing cards. Ten thousand more people came out to see Oakland play with Blue pitching than when he wasn't on the mound.

Navin also said that "discipline, not only money, was an important factor." He conceded that Cobb was probably the best player in the world then, but Cobb had tried to defy him in the past, too, and did unseemly things like quitting for a week when he didn't like a room on the road.

Finley also said that he would not be defied by Blue, although he admitted that Blue was probably the best pitcher in the game. Both parties refused to

If you don't approve of North's jump to four spades, we must report that our old friend Y was sitting North and his partner Z South.

Y had watched Z make so many difficult hands for Work, Whitehead, Lenz and Foster back in the days of auction that he automatically raised him with any excuse whatsoever.

West made the best opening lead of a small diamond. East ruffed and returned a trump.

"This isn't the sort of hand they used to give me to play 50 years ago," said Z. "But I think justice may triumph."

He let the spade come around to his 10. Then he played dummy's ace of diamonds. East trumped and Z overruffed. Then he ruffed a club in dummy and led another diamond.

East discarded a heart and Z ruffed again. Now he ruffed a second club in dummy and another diamond in his own hand. East discarded a second heart on that fourth diamond, but it did him no good.

Z simply played his king of clubs. West took two club tricks, but then had to lead a heart. Z went up with dummy's queen and collected the rest of the tricks.

"You get better as you get older," beamed Y. "Could they have found a defense to beat you?"

"No," said Z. "It is a most interesting hand."

Protest Nixon Action

Six young lawyers told a Washington news conference Wednesday they had resigned from the Justice Department to protest President Nixon's civil rights policies, claiming he had retreated from the national commitment to racial equality. The six men, all staff attorneys with the civil rights division, said they planned to work for Sen. George McGovern's presidential candidacy. (UPI)

Interest Creeping Back Up?

WICHITA (AP) — Are interest rates — particularly mortgage interest rates — going back up?

"That's what it's beginning to look like," the president of the National League of Insured Savings Associations said here Wednesday.

Ross M. Blakely, Los Angeles, spoke Wednesday at the 76th annual convention of the Kansas Savings and Loan League. He said increased demands for credit, especially by government, soon will force interest rates up.

"The real problem is the government," Blakely said. "And what it's going to have to raise with the (budget) deficit it's running."

"I think that is the predominant issue, even more so than the pressure (on the interest rates) from the private sector," he said in an interview. "It's just a matter of life. The government's got to raise the money to cover this deficit."

Blakely predicted that it wouldn't be long — a matter of months — before the mortgage rates start back up. Rates have held relatively steady since early 1971 when they dropped from record highs during 1969-70.

Dr. Norris Discusses Tax Levy

Dr. T. J. Norris, Sedalia superintendent of schools, addressed the Wednesday noon meeting of the Lions Club and commended the group for being among the first local organizations to go on record in support of the school levy.

Program chairman Ira Mounts introduced Dr. Norris, who said he felt apathy on the part of the "yes" voters was a big factor behind the April 4 defeat of the levy issue.

After explaining the need to pass the levy and the intended use of its additional funds, Norris told the group "we must get the yes votes out (for the May 16 election) that did not get out to the polls during the last election."

During a question and answer session that followed his address, the superintendent said that as of 11 a.m. Wednesday his office had handled a total of 312 requests for absentee ballots.

Student guests at the luncheon meeting included Greg Brown, Sacred Heart High School, and Dan Embree and Marlin Dedrick, president and vice-president of the Smith-Cotton High School student council.

Club president John Kenny presided over the meeting.

Sees Natural Rejection Of Cancer As Possible

NEW YORK (AP) — The possibility of stimulating the body's natural defense mechanisms to reject cancer cells is emerging strongly from several new scientific studies.

Immunology, the study of the body's way of fighting infection, is the basis. This system enables man to develop immunity to polio virus, for example, and is the reason the body tends to reject a transplanted heart as foreign.

Thus it is a mystery why the body's immune cells—the white blood cells—do not repel the invasion of the foreign cancer cells, if a way can be found to awaken the white blood cells to the presence of the foreign cancer, this would be a powerful weapon against the disease.

Two scientific conferences, one now in Gatlinburg, Tenn., and one last week in Boston, heard progress reports of the immunotherapy of cancer.

Dr. Edmund Klein of Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, N.Y., told the Gatlinburg conference of his work with human cancer, including five women with cases of breast cancer considered hopeless. All had post operative recurrences of the cancer known as adenocarcinoma.

Klein said he attempted to stimulate the immune system by injecting the patients with a purified form of tuberculosis substance called PPD, for purified protein derivative of tuberculin.

The idea is that most people have developed an immunity to tuberculosis and that by injecting tuberculin into the site of a cancerous lesion, the substance reawakens the "memory" of the white blood cells to fight against the tuberculosis as

Forecast Profits In Coins

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Treasury stands to make nearly $600 million in profits by selling collectors versions of Eisenhower silver dollars at $3 to $10.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally brought up the subject Wednesday at a session of the Senate Appropriations Committee and said:

"The profit we're making on sales of the Eisenhower dollar is just unconscionable, that's the truth."

Connally didn't have the exact figures on the profits but the U.S. mint did.

A spokesman said the Treasury profit last year on sales of $10 "proof" dollars and $3 uncirculated dollars was exactly $40,411,669.14 with the profit for both types of coins averaging $3.89.

Multiplied by the 150 million dollars—each containing 40 percent silver—that the Mint is authorized by Congress to make and sell, the total potential profit is $597.5 million.

And a mint spokesman said the profit margin probably will rise as initial production costs go down.

"We're selling all of them we can make," he said. "We're limited only by our production capacity."

"As a matter of fact, our profits should be more than $3.89 on each coin, the spokesman said. "I figure that profit margin will either stand firm or go up. It won't go down."

The profit from the 3,858,626 proof coins sold at $10 each and the 6,542,354 uncirculated coins sold at $3 each went into the Treasury's general fund.

In addition to that, the mint shipped 196 million of the ordinary cupra-nickel Eisenhower dollars to the banks. The cost of the metal in each of those one-dollar coins is just six cents.

Blaze Damages Chemical Plant

CRESTLINE, Kan. (AP) — A cooling tower was destroyed and two other facilities of the Gulf Chemical Plant here were damaged by fire late Wednesday afternoon.

Firefighting units from Joplin, Mo., Galena, Baxter Springs and Columbus, Kan., helped fight the blaze which was believed to have started from a grass fire.

An estimate of the total damage was not available.

they did when first exposed. In doing this, the entire immune system, derived from the thymus gland, fights the cancer at the same time.

Since this treatment, Klein reported, the cancers in all five women have been in remission, arrested, in varying degrees.

Klein also reported using immunotherapy on patients with internal cancers, involving the liver, spleen and other organs, with mixed results. Over three years, 15 of 26 cases successfully responded to immunotherapy, he said.

"Hopefully we can now extend the treatment further to a larger number of persons," Klein said in an interview. "It does look like it's a pretty general principle."

But Klein also cautioned that the work is still in its early stages. "The data presented here," he said, "should be viewed as exploratory and are primarily indicative of feasibility and of avenues justifying further pursuit, rather than as therapeutic procedures."
